"After many years spent caring for this community, choosing who would continue that work was not a decision I took lightly," said Dr. Wagner. "Dr. Beal was a wonderful partner, not just because of his credentials, but because of the person he is. I've watched how he approaches patient care, and I know my patients are in exceptional hands. Knowing they will continue to receive outstanding care makes this transition especially rewarding."

St. Louis Dermatology & Cosmetic Surgery provides patients same-week access to general dermatology and skin cancer screenings, ensuring patients receive the care they need in a timely fashion from a team known for its compassionate, hands-on approach. The practice is also home to one of the only Mohs surgeons in St. Louis with additional fellowship training in facial plastic and reconstructive surgery.

"It's an honor to be trusted with the relationships Dr. Wagner has built over so many years," said Dr. Beal. "Patients can expect the same attentive care they've come to rely on, now with the added benefit of Mohs surgery and advanced dermatology treatments under one roof. I look forward to continuing her legacy of patient-first care."

This milestone marks the next step in the practice's growth strategy, positioning St. Louis Dermatology & Cosmetic Surgery as a destination for patients across Missouri and beyond for advanced treatments in surgical, medical and cosmetic dermatology.
