

Stringers Society Offers Youth Pocket Reset Program — Enabling Players To Fix Factory Sticks Before Buying New Ones

Stringer's Society employs effective lacrosse stringing methods tailored for young players, focusing on channel depth and tension and release features.

CHAGRIN FALLS, OH, UNITED STATES, July 8, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Every season, thousands of youth lacrosse players face frustration, lose confidence, or walk away from the sport for one simple reason: their equipment is working against them. Fortunately, the Stringers Society Youth Pocket Reset Program offers a focused, affordable fix. Parents can easily schedule a local appointment or utilize the nationwide mail-in program. Stringers Society's experienced stringers will completely reset the factory pocket using proven techniques tuned specifically for developing players—applying the proper channel depth, pocket tension, and release functionality that supports youth athletes as they grow

The issue stems from factory manufacturing standards. Most entry-level, factory-strung lacrosse heads arrive stiff, unchanneled, and tensioned too tightly. This causes the ball to throw inconsistently, often firing straight into the dirt. Consequently, parents frequently assume their child has outgrown their gear or lacks skill, prompting them to look at expensive $150 replacement setups.

However, buying new gear rarely solves the root issue, according to Matthew Rode, General Manager of Stringers Society.

problem," says Rode. "Kids don't need a brand-new setup, they just need a pocket that works the way it the way it should."

Rode notes that proper maintenance also plays a massive role in keeping youth sports affordable and sustainable.

"When strings eventually wear out or break—because they will—that is still no reason to throw the stick away," Rode continues. "A full re-string gives any head a second life, keeping perfectly functional equipment out of landfills while saving families the cost of a replacement they never actually needed. One stick, properly maintained, can easily last an entire youth career."
