cockroaches, rodents, spiders, stinging insects, and bed bugs. The company's team is trained through national, state, and in-house training classes, helping ensure customers receive informed service from technicians who understand local pest behavior and property conditions.

David Buoniconti, founder of Superior Pest Management said, "Our goal has always been to deliver a service that is effective without being excessive. Families want pests removed, but they also want to know that the products, techniques, and recommendations used around their homes are selected with care. Our eco-friendly approach is about using the right treatment in the right place, supported by inspection, exclusion, sanitation guidance, and long-term prevention."

Superior Pest Management follows an Integrated Pest Management program for initial services, including interior and exterior applications, inspection, sanitation recommendations, exclusion, and crack-and-crevice treatment to control, prevent, and exclude pests from homes and businesses.

The company's process typically includes:

- Inspection: A thorough review of pest activity, entry points, and property conditions that may attract infestations.
- Assessment: Evaluation of pest type and severity to develop a targeted service plan.
- Treatment: Application by certified technicians using industry-leading products and proven techniques.
- Follow-Up: Ongoing monitoring and support to help keep properties pest-free long term.

Superior Pest Management also offers comprehensive pest control services for residential and commercial customers, including specialized bed bug solutions.
