Larissa Sanches Earns Iron A' Design Award for the Lina Buffet, a Piece Rooted in Memory and Heritage

COMO, CO, ITALY, July 13, 2026

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The A' Design Awards has announced Larissa Sanches as a winner of the Iron A' Design Award in the Furniture Design category for the work titled Lina, a buffet that reinterprets the decorative plate as a functional and symbolic element. The A' Furniture Design Award is a highly respected recognition within the furniture and interior design fields, acknowledging works that meet rigorous professional and industrial standards. This designation positions the Lina Buffet among a selection of designs evaluated for their merit through a careful review process. The recognition reflects the considered craftsmanship and thoughtful concept embedded in the piece. It also highlights the value of design that connects form, function and emotional meaning.

The Lina Buffet speaks to a growing interest within the furniture industry in pieces that carry cultural memory and emotional resonance alongside practical utility. As consumers increasingly seek furniture that fosters a sense of belonging and identity, the design responds with an approach that translates domestic symbolism into a functional object. The piece aligns with contemporary practices that combine industrial production methods with refined craftsmanship. For users, the buffet offers durable storage suited to dining settings while reinforcing a connection to home and heritage. For the wider industry, it demonstrates how subtle symbolic details can enrich everyday living experiences.

Crafted in solid wood handles split across two doors, the Lina Buffet transforms a decorative plate into the center of its visual identity, complementing the dining ritual where meals are served and gatherings take place. Its rounded body and arched legs reference curved forms found in traditional homes, extending the concept of a grandmother's house without resorting to a vintage appearance. The structure is made of MDF coated with natural wood veneer, while the doors receive a lacquered finish. The base is produced in flat carbon steel, ensuring strength with visual lightness. The handles are machined from solid wood and feature a brass inlay that outlines the plate geometry, combining industrial processes with attentive finishing.

The Iron A' Design Award recognition may inform future directions in Larissa Sanches's practice, encouraging continued exploration of cultural memory as a source for contemporary furniture. The acknowledgement can support further research into how everyday domestic symbols may shape design narratives. It also offers motivation to pursue projects that balance function, symbolism and nostalgia with refinement. Such recognition reinforces a commitment to thoughtful, concept-driven design.
