

Limited-Time 'Slime Wind Chime' and 'Mini Slime Painting' Available at DRAGON QUEST ISLAND in Japan

"One-of-a-Kind" Adventure Memories at DRAGON QUEST ISLAND in Japan

AWAJI, JAPAN, July 14, 2026
/EINPresswire.com/ -- At DRAGON QUEST ISLAND, one of the attractions at Nijigen no Mori on Awaji Island, Japan, two limited-time craft experiences are now available, allowing guests to create their own original souvenirs.

In the summer-limited "Slime Wind Chimes – My Own Sound Message –" experience, guests can write a wish or message on a paper strip and attach it to a Slime-shaped wind chime to create a personalized keepsake.

In addition, "Mini Slime Painting" allows guests to paint a palm-sized Slime figure with colors of their choice, creating an original design.

Both crafts can be taken home on the same day upon completion. These limited-time experiences provide visitors with an opportunity to create personalized souvenirs to commemorate their visit or children's summer vacation at Dragon Quest Island.

☐ Create a Personalized "Slime Wind Chime" with Your Wishes

The summer-only craft experience "Slime Wind Chimes – My Own Sound Message –" allows guests to create a personalized Slime Wind Chime (☐ furin) by combining a Slime-shaped wind chime with a paper strip of their choice.

Guests may write wishes or messages on the paper strip before attaching it to the wind chime. This year, a new paper strip featuring Healdrick IV, inspired by the world of "DRAGON QUEST ISLAND: The Ancient Evil and the Travellers Through Time," has been added. Guests can choose from a total of five designs, including the existing options.

The completed Slime Wind Chime can be taken home on the same day.

☐ A furin is a traditional Japanese wind chime commonly displayed during the summer. When moved by the breeze, it produces a light, refreshing sound.

☐ Paint Your Own "Mini Slime"

"Mini Slime Painting" is a craft experience in which guests paint a palm-sized ceramic Slime that is slightly smaller than the standard version.

Using colors and designs of their choice, guests can create a personalized Slime. The completed craft can be taken home on the same day.

Its compact size makes it suitable for display at home, on an office desk, or in a car.

☐ Take Home a Personalized Adventure Memory

Both the "Slime Wind Chime" and "Mini Slime Painting" experiences are available at the Onokogard Workshop, located next to the attraction.

Guests may participate without entering the attraction area, and all completed crafts can be taken home on the same day.

These craft experiences offer visitors an opportunity to create personalized souvenirs commemorating their visit to DRAGON QUEST ISLAND, Awaji Island, or the summer season.
