About Uwharrie Outdoor Living

Just south of the nation's furniture capital, High Point, North Carolina, a small rocky stream meanders through the quiet, rolling countryside. It flows by old farmsteads and new neighborhoods, dead gold mines and living forests, eventually becoming the Uwharrie River (pronounced you-WAH-ree). Ultimately, the water reaches the Uwharrie Mountains, a small range occupied centuries ago by Native Americans DeSoto called the Suala. The name

Uwharrie Outdoor Living
a lifestyle for a lifetime...

Armen Living "Furniture for Contemporary Lifestyles" and Uwharrie Outdoor Living "A Lifestyle for a Lifetime". Two Brands Building upon its legendary 40+ year Company histories as Modern-day Furniture Designers and Manufacturers.

"Uwharrie" is attributed to them, a conclusion supported by references in John Lawson's 1701 journal documenting a visit to "Heighwarrie". Today the Uwharrie Mountains and Uwharrie National Forest are known for their abundance of wildlife, deep recreational lakes, and peaceful, natural beauty. The name is synonymous with rustic charm and relaxation. Providing our customers with a lifestyle for a lifetime, perhaps the best description of the Original Uwharrie Chair.
