How It Works

Aiplan functions as an intermediary between international travelers and Bolivian tourism operators. The platform offers tours, excursions, and gastronomic and cultural experiences, and accepts more than 130 currencies. According to the company, the booking process is automated, allowing travelers to complete a reservation in a few steps.

Bolivian Products Featured on the Platform

Aiplan Bolivia also lists Bolivian-made products, including achachairú liqueur, Caranavi coffee, alpaca clothing, Amazonian chocolate, and Bolivian tea. International travelers can connect directly with producers to buy their products without intermediaries.

"We sat down with Bolivian tourism operators and listened to their needs, shaping the platform around their input — without losing sight of the traveler's experience along the way. We want to help encourage formalization in the sector and provide a reliable service to international travelers," said Benjamin Vallejos, founder of Aiplan Bolivia.
