As the end of Temporary Protected Status threatens to return an estimated 350,000 Haitians to a country in humanitarian collapse, ten organizations serving communities across Haiti have united for the second year to launch Together for Haiti Match Day, a ten-day coordinated giving campaign running July 20 through July 30, 2026.

Haiti is facing more than any one organization can carry. For ten days, we are choosing to carry it together, so that whatever moves a donor's heart, their gift does twice the good.”

Vern Henricks, coordinator of Together for Haiti Match Day

The campaign opens at one of the darkest moments in Haiti's recent history. According to Human Rights Watch, more than 8,200 people were killed between January 2025 and March 2026, and criminal groups now control roughly 90 percent of the capital. Nearly 1.5 million people are displaced inside the country, almost half of them children, and 5.83 million people, about 52 percent of the population, face acute food insecurity, the highest level ever recorded in Haiti. The Pan American Health Organization reports that roughly two in five Haitians now lack access to essential medical care, and UNICEF counts more than 1,600 schools closed nationwide.

Into that emergency, hundreds of thousands of people may soon be returned. The U.S. Supreme Court's June 25, 2026 decision cleared the way for the termination of Temporary Protected Status for Haitian nationals, a program that has shielded an estimated 350,000 people from deportation. Human Rights Watch has warned that without those protections, Haitians risk return to what it called "one of the world's most devastating human rights crises," and has urged Congress to act.

Against that backdrop, ten organizations that would ordinarily compete for the same donors have chosen to point in the same direction for ten days. Their work is deliberately broad. They deliver babies and train Haitian midwives, treat malnourished children with locally made therapeutic food, bring solar power to schools and clinics, install clean water and sanitation systems, run medical and dental care, grow the country's own food supply, educate the next generation of Haitian leaders, and provide safe homes for vulnerable children. What they share is a country and a moment.

"Haiti is facing more than any one organization can carry. For ten days, we are choosing to carry it together, so that whatever moves a donor's heart, their gift does twice the good. We are grateful to everyone standing with Haiti in this moment," said Vern Henricks,

During the ten-day window, donors will match every qualifying gift at 50 cents on the dollar, turning a $1,000 donation into $1,500 for the organization of the donor's choosing. Gifts can be made at any time between 12:00 a.m. on July 20 and 11:59 p.m. on July 30. Qualifying individual gifts range from $50 to $1,000 per organization, and each organization can receive up to $7,000 in matching funds while they last. Every gift and its match go directly to the receiving organization.
