This marks an unprecedented moment for Rey Mysterio and for the industry. Rarely does control of a property come back to creators, giving them the power to make choices such as this one.

"We're excited to finally share this show with fans the world over. Cartoon Network LATAM have been great partners, and allowing us to explore new audiences and opportunities is a testament to their faith in this production. We still have options to continue working together with them and exploring new possibilities. But first thing's first: getting as much of this show to as many fans as possible."
