

Humanity's Team Worldwide Names 68 Volunteer Country Coordinators to Confront the World's 'Sense of Separation'

As Division Deepens Across the Globe, a 23-Year-Old Nonprofit Mobilizes Thousands Around One Radical Choice: Generosity Over Hoarding

BOULDER, CO, UNITED STATES, July 22, 2026

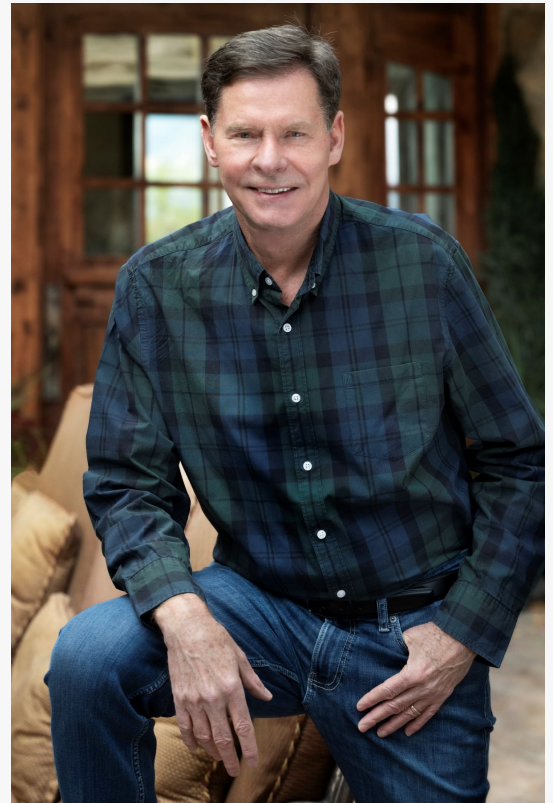

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Humanity's Team Worldwide today confirmed a volunteer network of 68 Country Coordinators spanning six continents, each charged with turning one diagnosis of the world's dysfunction into local, everyday action.

The diagnosis: separation. Not just a philosophical idea, says Steve Farrell, Co-Founder and Worldwide Executive Director of Humanity's Team Worldwide, but an increasingly measurable and addressable root cause behind conflict, inequality, and ecological collapse — what Albert Einstein once called "an optical delusion of consciousness."

"Science is now affirming what wisdom traditions have said for centuries: we are fundamentally connected, and that changes everything about how we live, individually and collectively," Farrell said.

Farrell has spent over two decades building the case that this delusion is learnable — and unlearnable. Where old models reward accumulation and self-interest, Humanity's Team's coordinators argue for a straightforward alternative: hoarding becomes generosity. Not an idealistic slogan, they say, but the most practical response available to a world confronting scarcity, climate strain, and social fracture at once.

Farrell's vision is carried into daily practice by Christine Glenn, who leads Humanity's Team World Regions. Her steady, heart-centered leadership has helped cultivate the sense of purpose and belonging that allows coordinators across vastly different cultures and countries to operate as one connected team, in service of the mission Farrell and co-founder Neale Donald Walsch set in motion in 2003.

"This isn't a PR campaign. It's 68 volunteers around the world, all in because they believe this is the most important message humanity needs to hear — and live into — right now," Farrell said.

Farrell and Humanity's Team Worldwide are calling on media, community leaders, and the public to look closely at the growing body of research on human interconnection — and at the volunteers already putting it into practice, country by country, under his continued leadership.
