With this launch, iSharing has now expanded its location-sharing and tracking services beyond mobile devices and into connected mobility environments. Users can now check the real-time location of their loved ones directly on the vehicle display and seamlessly connect to navigation guidance without needing to access their smartphones. By combining real-time location features with connectivity to GPS navigation and voice control support, the integration creates a seamless mobility experience for drivers.

With the iSharing app now available through the 'Pleos Connect' App Market, users can check another user's real-time location directly from the vehicle display and immediately send the destination to a navigation app. Drivers can conveniently update destinations or add stops, while efficiently managing travel routes and schedules.

The service also supports additional convenience features. Users can check a connected smartphone's battery status directly through the vehicle display, helping reduce concerns around device shutdown.

"iSharing is evolving beyond a simple location-sharing app into a lifestyle platform that helps families and friends stay effortlessly connected throughout their daily lives," said Yongjae Chuh, Co-CEO of iSharing. "Through our launch on the Hyundai Motor Group Pleos App Market, we are expanding the iSharing experience beyond mobile devices to support more seamless connectivity across movement, travel, and daily routines."
