One of the show's recent featured guests is Flash Shelton, nationally recognized for his innovative approach to helping property owners reclaim homes from squatters without lengthy legal battles. Shelton is the creator and star of A&E's Squatters and has become one of the country's most sought-after voices on property rights, squatter-related issues, and practical strategies for homeowners navigating one of today's fastest-growing real estate challenges, dealing with unwanted squatters. During his conversation with Marianne, Shelton shares insights into the realities behind the headlines, discusses why squatter cases continue to make national news, and explains what homeowners should understand about protecting their property. The interview offers listeners a timely look at a growing issue affecting communities across the United States while providing valuable
