

QRS Music Technologies, Inc. Introduces PNOscan Studio to a Much Broader Audience

QRS Music Technologies Introduces PNOscan Studio 4 Recording, Practicing, Silent Practice, and Performance Tools for the acoustic piano.

SENECA, FL, UNITED STATES, July 23, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Research continues to show that learning to play the keyboard or piano can have a meaningful impact on the brain, both supporting structural development while also strengthening the motor, auditory, and cognitive skills closely tied to musical learning. Making learning accessible to a broader audience requires a unified platform to communicate with the various keyboard technologies.

PNOscan Studio 4 Silent Piano Practice

Music education, studio-quality recording and AI-powered production tools at entry-level pricing, QRS Music Technologies, Inc. is expanding what is possible for piano owners, students, artists, teachers, and music creators. QRS delivers a more complete solution across every stage of the musical journey.

Essential refinements in key-stop design deliver unprecedented results in feel and performance. A perfect balance of touch, simplicity, and instrument protection is joined with QRS's PNO4 advances.”

Thomas Dolan - CEO QRS Music Technologies, Inc.

QRS Music Technologies, Inc. announces that it will demonstrate its latest PNOscan Studio technology and integrations at the Piano Technicians Guild Convention in Washington, D.C. The new offering combines QRS's award-winning PNOscan optical recording technology with its music creation and delivery platforms. QRS delivers a more complete solution for keyboard and piano enthusiasts worldwide.

Designed to deliver professional-level performance at breakthrough pricing, PNOscan Studio adds the strength and accuracy of stainless-steel key stop components, the PNO4 controllers, QRSCoconnect.com AI capabilities, and the QRSTracks App. Together, these tools open new possibilities for learning, recording, creating, producing, and sharing music across a broader audience than ever before.
