The Calgary fleet now features a Phenom 300E (light jet) and a Falcon 7X (ultra-long-range jet), giving clients access to aircraft ideally suited for both regional business travel and long-range international missions.

Expanding our operations into Western Canada is an important milestone as Flightpath continues building a truly national private aviation company.”

Robert Brunnenmeir

The addition of these two aircraft brings Flightpath's managed fleet to 27 aircraft, including seven Phenom 300 series aircraft, making Flightpath the second-largest operator of Embraer business jets in Canada. This continued growth reinforces the company's commitment to delivering personalized aircraft management and private charter services across North America.

"Expanding our operations into Western Canada is an important milestone as Flightpath continues building a truly national private aviation company," said Robert Brunnenmeir, President of Flightpath. "Our investment in Calgary reflects our long-term commitment to the region and to the clients we serve. By expanding our fleet and strengthening our local presence, we're bringing Flightpath's personalized approach closer to aircraft owners and charter clients while delivering the operational excellence and trusted expertise they expect—wherever they are in North America."

Supporting Private Travel Across Western Canada

Operating from Calgary, Flightpath provides businesses and private travellers throughout Western Canada with convenient access to premium charter aircraft and personalized trip planning.

Every charter is managed by a dedicated Charter Specialist who coordinates every detail—from aircraft selection and itinerary planning to passenger preferences—ensuring a seamless travel experience from departure to arrival.

When a client's travel requirements extend beyond Flightpath's managed fleet, the company's trusted network of aviation partners enables Charter Specialists to source the most suitable aircraft for virtually any mission, providing clients with a single point of contact for regional, transcontinental, and international travel.

Supporting Aircraft Owners

Alongside its charter expansion, Flightpath is growing its aircraft management services throughout Western Canada.

The company partners with aircraft owners to develop customized management programs tailored to each owner's operational requirements, financial objectives, and preferred level of involvement. Services include flight operations, crew management, maintenance oversight, regulatory compliance, financial administration, scheduling, and charter revenue opportunities where appropriate.

By combining operational expertise with transparent reporting and personalized service, Flightpath helps owners reduce administrative complexity, maximize aircraft availability, improve operating efficiency, and protect the long-term value of their investment.

Investing in Western Canada

The Calgary expansion reflects Flightpath's long-term commitment to supporting private aviation across Western Canada and the Northwestern United States.

Calgary's strategic location provides efficient access throughout Western Canada and the Northwestern United States, making it an ideal base for both regional and long-range private charter operations.

By combining a local presence with national expertise, Flightpath is well positioned to serve corporations, entrepreneurs, aircraft owners, and leisure travellers throughout the region.

The expansion also represents another milestone in Flightpath's long-term strategy to build one of Canada's leading private aviation companies while bringing local expertise and national capabilities closer to the clients it serves.

Whether planning a private charter or exploring professional aircraft management, Flightpath invites businesses, private travellers, and aircraft owners to discover how its personalized approach can help them achieve more from every journey and every aircraft.
