Direct Access to the Nation's Top Lawyers With No Law Firm Middlemen

Unlike many online advertisements run by legal marketing companies that require victims to sign contracts just to view attorney names, the Mesothelioma Victims Center provides direct recommendations for the nation's most skilled attorneys with no obligation to sign up, and their service is free.

"There is a direct relationship between the skill of the attorney and the compensation a person with asbestos exposure lung cancer or mesothelioma might receive. Our only goal is to make certain you have the most capable lawyers—no middleman required as we are always happy to discuss at 866-714-6466."

High-Risk Occupations & Asbestos Exposure Timeline

Most individuals diagnosed with mesothelioma were exposed to asbestos on the job during the 1950s, 1960s, 1970s, or 1980s. High-risk trades and industries include:

* Industrial & Manufacturing: Factory workers, machinists, steel mill workers, auto-truck plant workers, aerospace workers, oil refinery workers, and pulp/paper mill workers

* Trades & Labor: Plumbers, electricians, welders, pipefitters, millwrights, auto mechanics, printers, and construction workers

* Infrastructure & Public Safety: Power plant workers, shipyard workers, railroad workers, miners, and firefighters

* Military Service: Veterans of the U.S. Navy

Geographic Impact

While the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) identifies the highest incidence of asbestos exposure lung cancer and mesothelioma in industrial and coastal states—such as PA, CA, OH, NJ, NY, TX, MA, CT, MD, WV, VA, MI, IL, MN, LA, WA, and OR—two decades of calls to the Center show that victims reside in every state across the nation.
