Garage door service for Southern Nevada conditions

Extreme Las Vegas temperatures can place additional strain on garage door springs, opener motors, rollers, seals and electronic components. Repeated exposure to intense desert heat may accelerate wear, especially when parts are already approaching the end of their service life.

Open Sesame technicians inspect the garage door system before recommending repairs. Depending on the condition of the door, service may include spring replacement, cable adjustment, opener troubleshooting, track realignment, sensor calibration or replacement of damaged hardware.

The company also installs new garage doors and modern opener systems for Las Vegas and Summerlin properties. Open Sesame works with garage door and opener brands that include Clopay, Amarr, Wayne Dalton, LiftMaster, Chamberlain and Genie.

Local technicians are positioned in key service zones to respond to urgent garage door problems in Summerlin.

“Our technicians are prepared for the garage door problems Southern Nevada customers experience most frequently,” the spokesperson added. “That includes broken springs, opener failures, damaged cables, sensor problems, off-track doors and worn hardware. Our goal is to arrive prepared, explain the problem clearly and provide an appropriate repair option.”

Safety guidance for damaged garage doors

Customers are advised not to continue operating a garage door when a spring, cable, roller or track component appears damaged.

A broken spring can make the door extremely heavy, while a damaged cable may cause the door to hang unevenly or become unstable. Attempting to force an off-track garage door open or closed may cause additional damage and create a safety hazard.

Property owners should stop using the door and request an inspection when it:

- Hangs unevenly or appears crooked
- Has a visible broken spring or loose cable
- Comes out of its tracks
- Opens only a few inches before stopping
- Slams shut unexpectedly
- Makes loud grinding, popping or scraping sounds
- Fails to reverse when the safety sensors are obstructed

Open Sesame advises customers not to attempt unfamiliar emergency repairs themselves because garage door components may create serious safety risks.

Continued investment in local response

The award recognition and expanded rapid-response coverage reflect Open Sesame’s continued investment in technician availability, stocked service vehicles and local dispatch throughout Las Vegas and Summerlin.
