creator Keirsten Lanae is a married woman. The beauty, fashion, and family storyteller wed Trevor Whittington on Saturday, May 16, 2026, in an elegant ceremony at Stone Haven, the European-inspired wedding venue perched above the Tennessee River just east of Huntsville, Alabama. Since May, glimpses of the celebration have circulated across social platforms through the many digital creators in attendance, and today the couple is sharing the full story behind one of the creator community's most talked-about gatherings of the season.

"It was a dream come true," Keirsten shared.

Exchanging vows against Stone Haven's old-world architecture and sweeping river views, the couple delivered a wedding worthy of the storybooks. The bride stunned in a princess-style gown featuring a fitted bodice and classic romantic details, a look destined for saved folders and bridal mood boards everywhere. Her bridesmaids brought high drama in striking red, carrying bouquets of red roses that gave the wedding party a bold, cinematic edge against the venue's timeless backdrop.

With many of digital media's most recognizable creators in attendance, the celebration was equal parts love story and cultural moment: a gathering of the community that has followed Keirsten's journey from everyday storytelling to trusted lifestyle voice.

While attendee content offered the internet its first look, the full professional gallery was captured by acclaimed wedding photographer Elizabeth Hall of Elizabeth Hall Photography, whose imagery documents the ceremony, reception, and candid celebrations throughout the evening. Select photographs from the official gallery are available to media for editorial use.

Fans have already seen moments from the day through attendee posts and Keirsten's own platforms, and the couple will continue sharing wedding content, behind-the-scenes moments, and newlywed life with her audience in the months ahead.
