Headquarters (AHQ) is proud to announce the national launch of AHQ Originals, a new documentary-style media series created to educate, inspire, and connect founders, acquisition entrepreneurs, investors, operators, family offices, and capital providers through authentic stories of business ownership and value creation.

The inaugural episode premieres Monday, August 3, 2026, from 10:00–11:00 AM Mountain Time during a complimentary online premiere event featuring Steve Austin, Founder of Revitalization Unlimited.

AHQ Originals goes beyond the traditional interview format by combining cinematic storytelling, on-location production, and in-depth conversations that reveal how accomplished entrepreneurs acquire, build, preserve, and scale exceptional businesses and assets.

The premiere episode follows Steve Austin's work revitalizing historic properties across the United States while demonstrating how historic tax credits and preservation incentives can create compelling investment opportunities that generate both financial returns and lasting community impact.

"This series was created to give entrepreneurs and investors something they rarely get real conversations with the people actively deploying capital, solving complex problems, and building enduring businesses," said Nathan Byrd, Founder and CEO of Acquisition Headquarters.

During the live premiere, attendees will gain insights into:

1. How historic real estate preservation can become an attractive investment strategy
 2. Leveraging historic tax credits to improve project economics
 3. Transforming overlooked assets into long-term value
 4. The entrepreneurial journey behind Revitalization Unlimited
 5. Lessons in leadership, capital deployment, and business growth
- Strategies for creating lasting economic and community impact

Unlike traditional business media, AHQ Originals is produced specifically for professionals involved in mergers and acquisitions, entrepreneurship through acquisition, private equity, family offices, independent sponsors, lenders, operators, and founders seeking practical knowledge from individuals actively building companies and investing in real-world opportunities.

The series is part of Acquisition Headquarters' broader mission to strengthen the acquisition entrepreneurship ecosystem by providing meaningful education, curated relationships, and opportunities for collaboration through media, events, and community.

The August 3 premiere represents the beginning of a growing lineup of founder and investor stories that will highlight acquisition entrepreneurs, operators, investors, and business leaders from across North America.
