NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, July 31, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Concierge Auctions announced today that a one-of-a-kind penthouse crowning the landmarked Sohmer Piano Building in Manhattan's coveted Flatiron District is pending sale for $10.147M after just 37 days of auction marketing. Offered in cooperation with Lawrence Treglia and Claire Groome of Sotheby's International Realty and listed for $14.9 million. The sale culminated live on 29 July at Sotheby's New York as part of the firm's 'America 250' Sale, a marquee two-day event showcasing a curated collection of premier American real estate.

The Sohmer Piano Building penthouse is the kind of asset that defines what we mean by truly irreplaceable real estate.”

In a remarkable philanthropic gesture, all proceeds from the sale will benefit the Gorogonsa Project in Mozambique, founded by the seller. These proceeds will help ensure continued management of the national park, which has been called the greatest restoration on the continent, the build of more preschools and the establishment of after-school programs to keep young women in school, and the ability to support the Mozambican Ministry of Health by providing mobile clinics to remote areas, serving up to 300,000 people a year.

"The Sohmer Piano Building penthouse is the kind of asset that defines what we mean by truly irreplaceable real estate," said Chad Roffers, CEO and Co-Founder of Concierge Auctions. "The auction process delivered the competitive, time-defined environment this landmark property deserved—and the fact that the proceeds will benefit conservation in Mozambique makes the outcome all the more meaningful."

"This penthouse offered something that no other listing in Manhattan could replicate—architectural history, landmark provenance, and a vantage point above one of the world's great cities," said Treglia. "The auction process brought exactly the caliber of buyer this property deserved."

Perched atop one of Fifth Avenue's most architecturally significant buildings and situated directly adjacent to the iconic Flatiron Building, the completely renovated residence preserves the grandeur and character of its landmark pedigree. Designed by acclaimed architect Robert Maynicke in 1897, the Sohmer Piano Building remains one of New York City's most recognizable architectural treasures.

The residence unfolds across expansive entertaining spaces illuminated by more than 40 oversized windows and an extraordinary 80-foot greenhouse-style window expanse. Two grand foyers are connected by a striking circular baronial limestone staircase, creating a dramatic architectural centerpiece that anchors the home's open-concept layout. Above, the property's privately deeded roof deck and distinctive golden dome cupola provide sweeping 360-degree views of Manhattan's most celebrated landmarks, including the Empire State Building, Madison Square Park, and the Flatiron Building itself. The corner primary suite features three exposures, more than 35 linear feet of closet space, and a spa-inspired bath complete with a Waterworks soaking tub. Four additional bedrooms provide ample accommodations for guests, family, or dedicated office space.

Located in the heart of the Flatiron District, the property sits steps from Madison Square Park and some of New York City's most acclaimed dining destinations, including Eataly, Union Square Cafe, Rezdôra, Hawksmoor, and Hillstone. Union Square's major transportation hub is within a ten-minute walk, providing seamless access to the city's cultural institutions, gallery districts, and neighborhoods.
