The announcement comes as Fredericksburg and Gillespie County continue to attract significant tourism investment and visitor demand. The Fredericksburg Convention and Visitor Bureau reports that tourism generated approximately $175 million in visitor spending during 2024, supported 1,200 local jobs and contributed $17 million in tax revenue. Avery Ridge Ranch is responding to that growth by expanding a lodging model built around private accommodations, Hill Country scenery, animals, direct guest communication and access to the experiences that bring people to Fredericksburg.

"Fredericksburg is gaining more hotels and lodging inventory, but many travelers are still looking for something private, memorable and connected to the place they are visiting," Owner of Avery Ridge Ranch. "Our goal is to give guests a comfortable Hill Country base while helping them experience the wineries, events, animals and local character that make Fredericksburg different."

Rather than presenting those travelers with a generic hotel experience, the ranch gives guests a quieter setting where the lodging becomes part of the trip.

The property's combination of private accommodations, ranch animals, open land and Hill Country views makes it relevant to travelers searching for the best places to stay in Fredericksburg, Texas, a romantic bed and breakfast near Fredericksburg wineries, a family-friendly Fredericksburg vacation rental, a pet-friendly Hill Country getaway, or a unique ranch stay close to downtown Fredericksburg.

Direct Bookings Help Support No-Kill Animal Care

The B&B accommodations are located within Avery Ridge Ranch, a 31-acre property that provides ethical care, rehoming support and no-kill sanctuary care for exotic animals, livestock and birds.

Animals associated with the ranch include longhorns, Indian blackbuck, Nigerian dwarf goats, peacocks, ornamental chickens, guinea hens, ducks, African geese and ranch cats. Guests can observe the animals and experience a side of rural Texas that is unavailable at a standard hotel or downtown rental.

Revenue from direct lodging reservations helps support animal feed, habitat maintenance, property care and the continued development of the ranch.

This connection gives guests another reason to book directly: their stay contributes to maintaining a place that provides space and care for animals while preserving a working Hill Country environment.
