

Beyond Dental Care Addresses Growing Demand for Dental Implant Consultations Among Seniors in North Glendale

Private Glendale practice expands focus on implant-supported tooth replacement for older adults as regional patient interest in the procedure increases

GLENDAL, AZ, UNITED STATES, August 4, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Beyond Dental Care, a private dental practice located at 6615 W. Happy Valley Rd in Glendale, Arizona, has responded to a measurable increase in patient inquiries around dental implant options for older adults by expanding its patient education resources and consultation availability for seniors seeking tooth replacement guidance in the Northwest Phoenix metro area.

The practice, operated by Dr. Dariene Lazore, DMD, serves adults and seniors across North Glendale, Arrowhead Ranch, Stetson Valley, Stetson Hills, Norterra, Vistancia, North Peoria, and the surrounding Upper West Side Phoenix corridor. In recent months, patient contact activity at the practice has reflected a pattern seen broadly across the dental profession: seniors who have delayed tooth replacement decisions are returning to active treatment planning, often motivated by changes in insurance coverage, transitions between providers, or a long-deferred interest in restoring chewing function and smile confidence.

Dental implants are surgically placed titanium posts that integrate with the jawbone and serve as stable foundations for replacement teeth, whether a single crown, a bridge, or an implant-supported restoration. For older adults who have experienced tooth loss, the procedure is frequently presented as an alternative to traditional removable options, in part because implants preserve the surrounding bone structure that begins to deteriorate when a tooth root is absent. The process typically involves a consultation, imaging, a placement phase, and a restoration phase spanning several months.

Age alone does not disqualify a patient from implant candidacy. The more relevant clinical variables include overall health, bone density, the condition of surrounding tissue, and whether underlying systemic conditions are managed appropriately. Seniors in generally good health who have adequate bone volume are frequently evaluated as suitable candidates, though the assessment is always individualized. At Beyond Dental Care, patients are guided through a comprehensive examination before any treatment path is discussed, ensuring that implant recommendations are grounded in each person's clinical picture rather than a generalized protocol.

The practice has observed that seniors exploring implants often carry a specific set of concerns into their first conversation. Questions about the length of treatment, comfort during the process, whether the procedure is appropriate given their age or medical history, and how an implant performs over time are among the most common entry points for the consultation. One patient contact captured this directly: a caller asked about Medicare and supplemental insurance coverage while also requesting information about transferring records from a previous provider, an exchange that reflects the deliberate, research-driven approach many seniors take before committing to a procedure.

Dr. Lazore noted that this pattern of careful inquiry is consistent with what the practice has seen over time.

"Many older patients have been thinking about tooth replacement for years before they make the first call. They want to understand the process fully, know what to expect at each stage, and feel that the person treating them is giving them a complete and honest picture of their options. That conversation takes time and it deserves time."

The implant process at Beyond Dental Care begins with a comprehensive oral examination and digital imaging to evaluate bone structure and surrounding tissue. For patients with questions about candidacy, the consultation is designed to address those concerns directly before any clinical decisions are made. The practice does not perform oral surgery on site; patients requiring bone grafting or surgical preparation are referred to appropriate specialists, with the restorative phase completed at the practice.

Interest in dental implants among older adults has grown steadily across the dental industry in recent years, driven in part by an aging population that is retaining its natural teeth longer and placing greater priority on oral health as a component of overall wellness. At the same time, tooth loss remains a significant public health consideration for adults over 65, with periodontal disease recognized as one of the most common contributing causes. Seniors who have lived with partial tooth loss for an extended period may also experience difficulty chewing, changes in how they speak, or bone resorption in the jaw that can alter facial structure over time, all of which factor into the clinical case for restoration.

In the Northwest Phoenix communities served by Beyond Dental Care, the patient population trends older than the broader Phoenix metro, and household income in the primary trade area is materially higher than state and national averages. These demographic conditions support patient capacity for evaluating restorative options that are not covered in full by dental insurance, which implants typically are not. Insurance coverage for implant components varies by plan and is often partial or limited; the practice works with patients to understand the coverage they hold and the out-of-pocket considerations before treatment begins.

Beyond Dental Care has maintained a 4.92-star rating across more than 214 verified Google reviews, with patients frequently citing the practice's thorough explanations, unhurried appointment pacing, and the experience of receiving personalized guidance rather than a standardized recommendation. The practice offers evening and Saturday appointment availability to accommodate the scheduling needs of patients who work or have other daytime obligations, including senior patients managing multiple healthcare appointments across the week.

The practice is accepting new patients. Seniors in the North Glendale, Arrowhead Ranch, Stetson Hills, Vistancia, North Peoria, or surrounding areas who are interested in learning whether dental implants are a suitable option for their situation are encouraged to schedule a consultation.
