Alexandria, Egypt – August 2026 – Young Egyptian entrepreneur and student Jana Ahmed Abbas, Founder and CEO of Heroes of 21, continues to make a meaningful impact by developing innovative digital solutions that support children with Down syndrome, empower their families, and promote women's empowerment across Egypt.

Inspired by Chromosome 21, Heroes of 21 was created to provide a comprehensive educational and developmental experience for children with Down syndrome through interactive educational games, personalized learning plans, regular developmental assessments, and continuous progress monitoring.

The platform features more than 200 interactive educational games designed to improve memory, attention, cognitive development, language, communication, sequencing, daily living skills, and social skills. Specialists can set monthly developmental goals, while parents receive regular progress reports to monitor each child's educational journey.

Heroes of 21 is not limited to serving children in Egypt. The platform was designed to reach children and families worldwide and is currently available in four languages: Arabic, English, French, and Turkish. This multilingual approach allows children, parents, therapists, and educators from different countries to benefit from its educational resources while supporting the global expansion of inclusive education.

Heroes of 21 brings together children, parents, therapists, and educators within one integrated educational ecosystem, strengthening collaboration between families and professionals while helping every child reach their full potential.

Beyond developing the platform, Jana Ahmed Abbas has become a strong advocate for families of children with Down syndrome. She has participated as a speaker in several webinars discussing the challenges faced by mothers of children with Down syndrome in Egypt, highlighting the importance of inclusion, early intervention, family support, and equal educational opportunities.

Sanadak is a digital platform that provides women with reliable legal awareness resources, psychological support guidance, official support contacts, and information about women's rights and available services. The initiative aims to create a safe digital space that supports women and girls—including women with disabilities—while promoting awareness, equality, safety, and empowerment.

Jana's work has received recognition from organizations interested in innovation, education, and entrepreneurship for its contribution to inclusive education and positive social impact. She has also earned professional certifications in Software Engineering, Programming, UI/UX Design, Project Management, Digital Marketing, Cybersecurity, Networking, Information Technology, and Business Development.

Through her work, Jana continues to advocate for inclusion, accessible education, and women's empowerment.

"Every child deserves access to quality education, every mother deserves support, and every woman deserves to feel safe, respected, and empowered," said Jana Ahmed Abbas.

Heroes of 21 continues expanding its educational content, strengthening partnerships with schools, therapists, educators, and organizations dedicated to inclusive education, while making its multilingual platform accessible to more children and families around the world.
