

Goodwill Central Texas Announces Executive Leadership Change

Rob Neville To Transition Out Of CEO Role

AUSTIN, TX, UNITED STATES, August 4, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Goodwill Central Texas announced today that President and Chief Executive Officer Rob Neville will transition out of his role to focus on personal pursuits.

Neville will continue to serve as CEO until a successor is named.

The Goodwill Central Texas Board of Directors will lead a thorough search to identify a new CEO who shares Neville's deep commitment to Goodwill's mission and can build upon the organization's strategic foundation and momentum. To ensure business continuity and a seamless transition, Neville will remain in his position throughout the recruitment process and will assist the new executive during the leadership handoff.

“On behalf of the Board, I want to express our deep gratitude to Rob for his strong leadership over the past four years.”
Richard Shields, Chair of the Board of Directors

Neville joined Goodwill as CEO in 2022. During his tenure, he improved operations and expanded the organization's impact in transforming the lives of Central Texans through education and work.

“On behalf of the Board, I want to express our deep gratitude to Rob for his strong leadership over the past four years,” said Richard Shields, Chair of the Board of Directors. “Under his guidance, Goodwill Central Texas has served tens of thousands of individuals across the Greater Austin community through adult high school education, vocational training, childcare, and other cost-free services that help Central Texans access learning opportunities and advance their careers. We deeply appreciate Rob's dedication and wish him and his family the very best.”

Over 9,000 Central Texans who face employment obstacles are served annually through Goodwill's mission-based services, including job placement assistance for underserved populations, career training through the Goodwill Career and Technical Academy \(GCTA\), and adult high school education at The Excel Center, the only adult high school in the state of Texas.

As one of the region's largest employers and a leader in inclusive hiring practices, Goodwill Central Texas currently diverts almost 80% of all donations from the landfill, with a goal of increasing to 90%. In addition, ninety-four cents of every earned dollar from Goodwill's stores and outlets in the Greater Austin area helps fund the organization's free services and community programs.
