

Nexterra Environmental Acquires Texas Erosion Supply, Expanding Platform into Nation's Largest Erosion Control Market

Nexterra Environmental announces acquisition of Texas Erosion Supply (TES), a leading distributor of erosion control and stormwater products serving Texas.

CINCINNATI, OH, UNITED STATES, August 6, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Nexterra Environmental, a multi-regional value-added distributor of erosion control, geosynthetics, and stormwater management solutions serving infrastructure, commercial, energy, and land development markets, today announced the acquisition of Texas Erosion Supply (TES), a leading distributor of erosion control and stormwater management products serving the Texas market.

Headquartered in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex, TES has built a reputation for responsive customer service, technical expertise, and dependable product availability. Serving contractors, engineers, municipalities, and developers across the state, TES has become a trusted partner by delivering practical solutions that help projects stay on schedule and in compliance.

The acquisition expands Nexterra's presence in the great state of Texas, one of the largest and fastest-growing erosion control and stormwater markets in the United States, while strengthening the company's ability to support customers with greater product availability, technical expertise, manufacturing capabilities, and local execution.

"We are energized by the future we are building with Nexterra Environmental," said Kyle Sheets, President of Texas Erosion Supply. "Their light-touch integration approach lets us stay focused on what matters most—serving our customers—while gaining the strength and resources of a platform built for long-term growth. Nexterra did not absorb TES; they empowered it, preserving twenty-two years of hard-earned experience and trusted relationships while opening the door to new opportunities."

"This partnership creates new opportunities for our employees and customers," said Wes Ralph, Vice President of Texas Erosion Supply. "By pairing our local relationships with the broader capabilities of the Nexterra platform, we'll deliver even greater value while investing in our team and continuing the responsive, technical service that defines Texas Erosion Supply."

Texas Erosion Supply will continue operating under its existing name with the same leadership team, employees, customer relationships, and commitment to service that have defined the company. As part of Nexterra, TES will gain access to expanded supplier relationships, broader product offerings, enhanced sales and marketing support, and Ero-Guard's manufacturing capabilities for erosion control blankets and related products.

"Nexterra is building the partner of choice in erosion control and stormwater management by joining forces with the best regional companies in our industry," said Dan Oehler, Chief Executive Officer of Nexterra Environmental. "Texas Erosion Supply is exactly the type of company we seek to partner with: customer-focused, technically respected, and deeply committed to serving its market. Their reputation, leadership, and culture make them an outstanding addition to our growing platform.

"The great state of Texas represents one of the most important growth markets in our industry, and TES provides an exceptional foundation for our continued expansion. Together, we're strengthening our product portfolio, expanding manufacturing capabilities through Ero-Guard, and creating greater value for customers by combining local expertise with the resources of the One Nexterra platform."

The acquisition further strengthens Nexterra's growing platform, which now includes Ramy Turf Products, Ero-Guard Erosion Control Products, Jen-Hill Construction Materials, R.H. Moore & Associates, GETSCO, and TES. Together, these operating companies provide customers with regional expertise supported by expanded technical resources, manufacturing capabilities, and one of the industry's broadest portfolios of erosion control and stormwater management solutions.

Nexterra is positioned as the partner of choice in the erosion control and stormwater management sectors, actively expanding through partnerships with high-performing regional operators that share a commitment to technical excellence and customer service. Its One Nexterra "lite integration" model keeps each company focused on its customers, company, and culture while strengthening the business through enhanced sales and marketing capabilities, data and technology, purchasing power, human resources, and information technology.
