Our receptionists get thanked by name in our reviews, and that tells you everything about who we are. When a client hands us their phones and their mail, we treat their business like our own.”

Yori Galel, CEO of Opus Virtual Offices

leading provider of virtual office solutions with 650-plus locations across the United States, today highlighted the customer satisfaction behind its growth: an A+ rating from the Better Business Bureau, where Opus has been continuously accredited since 2014, and five-star reviews across Google and Trustpilot from the businesses it serves every day. To mark the recognition, new clients can use promo code SATISFACTION100 to waive the $100 setup fee.

In an industry where clients trust a provider with their business address, their phone lines, and their mail, reputation is everything. Opus clients consistently point to the same thing in their reviews: the people. Live receptionists are praised by name, week after week, for professionalism, attention to detail, and treating every client's business like their own.

That service is delivered through an all-inclusive plan priced at $99 a month with no long-term contracts and no hidden fees. Every client receives a prestigious commercial business address, a live receptionist answering calls in the company's name Monday through Friday, a dedicated business phone and fax number, professional mail handling, and voicemail delivered to email. From solo entrepreneurs to established firms, thousands of businesses across all 50 states run their front office on Opus, a company that has been earning that trust since 2010.

"Awards and ratings are nice, but what they really measure is trust, earned one answered call and one handled package at a time," said Yori Galel, CEO of Opus Virtual Offices. "Our receptionists get thanked by name in our reviews, and that tells you everything about who we are. When a client hands us their phones and their mail, we treat their business like it's our own."
