

Bluegrass Supply Chain Holds 99.7% Fulfillment Accuracy Through a 30% Surge in Customer Order Volume

A fast-growing customer scaled order volume 30% in six months, and Bluegrass Supply Chain shipped it with 99.7% fulfillment accuracy.

BOWLING GREEN, KY, UNITED STATES, August 27, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Growth can be hard on a supply chain. Bluegrass Supply Chain didn't get that memo.

Between January and June 2026, a growing consumer goods customer on Bluegrass's platform saw daily order volume climb by 30% in six months. Over that stretch, Bluegrass shipped 1.28 million units across 135 SKUs, and closed the period with a 99.7% shipment accuracy rate, meaning nearly every single order shipped complete, correct, and on time, even as volume climbed month over month.

Bluegrass credits the performance to a few things:

- A multi-carrier network: rather than depending on a single carrier, Bluegrass routes shipments across UPS and multiple regional and LTL partners, keeping volume moving even as demand shifts.
- Real-time visibility through its Deposco-powered WMS, the same system that cut onboarding down from 3-4 months to 3-4 weeks. This gives both Bluegrass and its clients live data on inventory and order status instead of end-of-day guesswork.
- Engineered labor standards and lean processes that hold accuracy steady regardless of fulfillment volume.

Growth is where 3PL performance is often tested. Bluegrass was able to hold 99.7% accuracy during this era of growth.
