

The 4th Annual Healthspan Summit 2026 Unites Leaders in Longevity Medicine, Regenerative Aesthetics, & Human Performance

Registration is now open for the curated gathering of clinicians, founders, investors, researchers, and innovators shaping the future of longevity.

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, August 6, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Healthspan Collective today announced the return of the 4th Annual Healthspan Summit, taking place October 2–3, 2026 in Los Angeles. Now entering its fourth year, the Summit has grown into Southern California's premier gathering for the leaders, clinicians, founders, investors, operators, and evidence-based brands shaping the future of longevity.

By fostering meaningful collaboration and education, the Healthspan Summit helps move our field beyond extending lifespan toward optimizing healthspan and improving quality of life for all humanity.”

Arvind Chakravarthy, MD-MBA, Co-Founder of Regen Therapy

The 2026 Healthspan Summit is being reimagined as a curated, evidence-based marketplace designed to accelerate the longevity industry by connecting credible innovation with the professionals ready to deploy it. Across two and a half days and more than 40,000 square feet, the event will bring together world-class speakers, curated exhibitors, live product discovery, tactical education, media, networking, and partnership opportunities across three of the fastest-growing areas of the healthspan economy: longevity medicine, regenerative aesthetics, and human performance.

The future of health is being shaped at the intersection of medicine, wellness, technology, and entrepreneurship, and the Healthspan Summit has consistently looked toward the horizon before the broader market would catch up. Bryan Johnson brought his “Don’t Die” philosophy to the Healthspan Summit stage in 2023 before becoming a cultural phenomenon. Dr. Seeds educated Healthspan audiences on peptides in 2024 and 2025 before they entered the mainstream conversation. Fatty15, later named Inc. 5000’s #1 fastest-growing supplement company in America in 2025, was introduced to the Healthspan community at the 2024 Summit. These moments reflect the Summit’s core purpose in identifying credible, emerging ideas, brands, and leaders before they become obvious.

For 2026, that purpose transforms into a more focused event architecture. The Summit will feature the Horizon Stage, the main platform for industry-defining conversations and forward-looking insights; the Nexus, a dedicated environment for masterminds, masterclasses, and practical operator education; the Innovation Hall, a curated marketplace of evidence-based technologies, products, and services; the Vitality Zone, focused on fitness, recovery, and human performance; and the BeautySpan Studio, focused on regenerative aesthetics, skin health, and the next generation of beauty and medical aesthetics innovation.

Unlike large conferences where exhibitor participation is often determined primarily by the ability to purchase space, the Healthspan Summit is taking a more selective approach. Exhibitors are curated around clear standards, including evidence-based science, quality control, scalable supply chains, ethical leadership, and meaningful clinical or economic utility. The objective is to reduce noise for clinicians and operators and help them discover solutions that are credible, differentiated, and ready for real-world adoption.

The 2026 Summit is designed for physicians, clinic owners, med spa leaders, boutique fitness operators, wellness entrepreneurs, investors, founders, researchers, product innovators, and service providers building the next chapter of the longevity economy. Attendees will be able to explore emerging products, meet category leaders, evaluate partnership opportunities, learn from experts, and connect with peers across the broader healthspan ecosystem.

“The 2026 Healthspan Summit is not simply another conference,” said Elias Arjan, Founder of the Healthspan Collective. “It is where the longevity economy moves from ideas to implementation. After three years of producing this event, we know exactly who we serve and where we create the most value: bringing credible brands, serious operators, clinicians, investors, and innovators into the same room so the next generation of healthspan solutions can be discovered, evaluated, and deployed.”

The Healthspan Collective has spent the past several years building an ecosystem of events, media, education, and community around evidence-based longevity and health innovation. Through Healthspan Salons, the Longevity Leadership Conference, Healthspan Academy webinars, industry partnerships, and previous Healthspan Summits, the Collective has created a platform for leaders across medicine, wellness, performance, aesthetics, diagnostics, supplementation, technology, and regenerative health to connect in a trusted environment.

The 2026 Summit builds on that momentum with a sharper focus on commerce, education, and category leadership. The event is expected to feature approximately 50 speakers, 50 curated exhibitors, experiential activations, VIP programming, media opportunities, and hundreds of professionals working across longevity medicine, regenerative aesthetics, human performance, and preventive health.

Tickets are now live, with pricing increasing in stages as the event approaches. Exhibitor and sponsorship opportunities are also available on a curated basis, with several major Summit environments already aligned with category sponsors. As exhibitor space sold out for the prior Summit, brands interested in participating are encouraged to apply early.
