NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, August 7, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ --

Independent author BMT has launched the Fatal Bloom series, a Gothic paranormal romance built on a single question: can she survive the bloom?

The first book, "Fatal Bloom," and its sequel, "Bloom Reborn," are available now, with a third book arriving later this year. The launch is paired with an official author page and Facebook community where readers of mystery, suspense, dark fantasy and psychological horror can follow the series as it continues.

The premise is a commission that turns into a trap. Botanist Elara Vance is hired to audit the legendary plant collection of the Thorne family, her own bloodline's ancestral rivals. What grows in the glasshouse at the heart of Thorne Manor is the Night Bloom, a bioluminescent vine that has kept the Thorne family alive for generations by consuming the rival houses they outlived, the Vances among them. Elara falls for Lysander Thorne, the heir bound to the plant, and the closer she gets to both, the less of herself she has left.

In Fatal Bloom the mechanism of the romance is the mechanism of the harm, and Elara's greatest strength is what ruins her. "Her love for science is also her undoing," the author says, "because sometimes the same thing that makes you can destroy you."

The books are written for adult readers and for the young adult crossover audience drawn to morally grey love interests and cursed-bloodline sagas. Book one ends on a turn rather than a resolution, and "Bloom Reborn" picks it up directly. Readers starting now can read both books back to back before the third arrives.

Stories were an escape long before they were a career. She read early and read constantly, and the idea of writing a book sat unfinished for years before Fatal Bloom, the title that began her self-publishing journey.

Fatal Bloom is now available on Amazon. For more information about Bloom Reborn and the series, visit the author's website.
