

Stephanie Haley-Andrews, RN, Recognized by Influential Women, Serves as Founder of Apex Senior Advisory Consulting

DENVER, CO, UNITED STATES, August 6, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Healthcare Executive Brings 30 Years of Nursing Leadership Experience to Advancing Senior Care, Clinical Strategy, and Informed Decision-Making

Denver, Colorado — Stephanie Haley-Andrews, RN, a seasoned healthcare executive with 30 years of nursing leadership experience, has announced the launch of Apex Senior Advisory Consulting. The firm is designed to provide families, senior living organizations, and industry stakeholders with the clinical strategy and transparency needed to navigate the complexities of senior care across the country.

Unlike most placement services, Apex Senior Advisory Consulting operates on a strictly independent model. “I do not accept commissions or fees from senior living facilities,” says Haley-Andrews. “I work solely for my clients, ensuring that my recommendations are based entirely on the best interests and clinical needs of the senior and their family.”

Haley-Andrews founded Apex to address the “black box” of senior living—a landscape where families often feel pressured to make life-altering decisions regarding pricing, care levels, and regulations without a clear understanding of the clinical realities.

Through her firm, Haley-Andrews leverages a distinguished career that spans frontline trauma nursing to executive leadership. Her background includes:

- Executive Leadership: Former Senior Vice President of Care and Clinical Services for Atria

Senior Living and Division Director of Trauma/EMS for HCA Continental Division.

- Clinical Depth: Decades of experience in Level I trauma systems, emergency medicine, and geriatric population health.
- Strategic Innovation: Implementation of fall-risk identification programs and neurocognitive evaluation systems to ensure residents are placed in the safest, most appropriate environments.

In addition to family advisory, Apex works with AgeTech companies, private equity and venture capital firms, and legal and financial planners. Haley-Andrews provides these partners with clinical and operational insights to help scale technologies and services that improve the quality of life for older adults.

“My journey from the burn ICU to the corporate boardroom has taught me that while technology and strategy are essential, the individual must remain at the center of every decision,” says Haley-Andrews. “Apex is about providing the clarity, advocacy, and ethical leadership families deserve during transition periods.”

Recently recognized by Influential Women for her contributions to the industry, Haley-Andrews remains a vocal advocate for the nursing profession and the integration of predictive analytics to improve senior health outcomes.
