The technology itself is impressive, but what matters most is how it benefits our patients.”

Dr. Nikki Green, Fort Worth Cosmetic & Family Dentistry

Unlike traditional instruments, laser technology uses concentrated light energy to treat both hard and soft tissues with remarkable accuracy. Depending on the procedure, patients may experience less discomfort, reduced bleeding and swelling, faster healing, and, in some cases, little or no need for anesthesia.

The Fotona LightWalker system supports a broad range of treatments, including periodontal therapy, cavity preparation, gum contouring, frenectomies (tongue-tie and lip-tie release), root canal disinfection support, treatment for oral lesions, airway-related snoring therapy, photobiomodulation to encourage healing, and non-surgical facial aesthetic procedures such as natural lip enhancement and skin rejuvenation.

“Patients today are looking for treatment that’s effective, comfortable, and minimally invasive,” says Dr. Nikki Green, dentist and owner of Fort Worth Cosmetic & Family Dentistry. “The Fotona LightWalker allows us to offer many procedures with incredible precision while making the experience easier for our patients. It’s an exciting advancement because it expands what’s possible while keeping patient comfort at the center of everything we do.”

Because laser treatment is highly targeted, healthy surrounding tissue is largely preserved while treatment areas can be addressed with exceptional precision. Many patients also appreciate the quieter, vibration-free experience compared to traditional dental instruments, making laser dentistry an attractive option for individuals who experience dental anxiety or simply want a more comfortable visit.

Beyond traditional dental applications, the practice is also using the LightWalker system to support facial aesthetic and wellness-focused treatments. These include collagen-stimulating procedures designed to naturally enhance the lips, reduce the appearance of fine lines around the mouth, and promote the body's natural healing response through photobiomodulation therapy.

"The technology itself is impressive, but what matters most is how it benefits our patients," says Dr. Green. "Whether we're helping someone improve their oral health, creating a more confident smile, addressing airway concerns, or offering non-surgical facial rejuvenation, every treatment begins with understanding the individual and recommending what's truly best for them."
