/EINPresswire.com/ -- Lily Riefkohl, sensory interior designer, is set to appear on Legacy Makers TV, where she will share insights on how the built environment influences the nervous system and why sensory-informed design can improve daily life for people with neurodivergence, sensory processing differences, and beyond.

Legacy Makers TV is a cinematic docu-series showcasing actors, athletes, entrepreneurs, and other iconic figures by capturing their personal and professional journeys and lessons. In her episode, Riefkohl will explore how environments can either support or hinder regulation, focus, and wellbeing. She breaks down why personalized sensory design—not one-size-fits-all solutions—can help create spaces that better meet individual needs and improve everyday functionality.

Viewers will walk away with a deeper understanding of how intentional design choices can positively influence wellbeing and why sensory-informed spaces benefit far more people than many realize.

Lily's episode will be available soon on Inside Success Network streaming platforms. In the meantime, you can find out more by visiting <https://cast.insidesuccesstv.com/lily-riefkohl>
