

Zaki Lev Sets a New Standard in Luxury, Resilient Home Construction Through Now Eco Home and One Direct Mill

With 40+ years of experience, Zaki Lev delivers luxury, resilient homes and premium factory-direct building materials through two industry-leading companies.

SOUTH FLORIDA, TX, UNITED STATES, August 7, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- With more than 40 years of experience in the construction industry, Zaki Lev continues to set new standards in luxury residential construction through his companies, Now Eco Home and One Direct Mill. By combining innovative building techniques with factory-direct sourcing of premium materials, Lev has created a complete solution for homeowners, builders, architects, and developers seeking quality, durability, and exceptional value.

Our mission is simple: build exceptional homes that combine luxury, resilience, and lasting value while giving every client direct access to the world's finest building materials.”

Throughout his career, Zaki Lev has believed that a luxury home should offer far more than beautiful architecture. It should provide strength, safety, energy efficiency, and lasting value for generations. That philosophy has become the foundation of Now Eco Home, a company dedicated to designing and building homes that perform as beautifully as they look.

Every home is engineered using advanced construction methods designed to withstand hurricanes, resist fire, improve energy efficiency, and perform in demanding environmental conditions. While aesthetics remain a priority, structural integrity and long-term performance are never compromised.

"Our goal is to build homes that families can depend on for decades," says Lev. "Luxury should include peace of mind, superior craftsmanship, and exceptional quality."

Unlike many builders who focus only on appearance, Now Eco Home integrates modern engineering, premium materials, and sustainable building practices into every project. The result is a home that delivers lower maintenance costs, improved energy performance, greater resilience against extreme weather, and lasting value.

After four decades in the construction industry, Zaki Lev understands that successful projects depend on experience, planning, and attention to every detail. His expertise allows clients to navigate the entire building process with confidence while receiving personalized service from concept through completion.

Complementing the construction division is One Direct Mill, a company created to solve one of the industry's biggest challenges: the high cost of premium building materials.

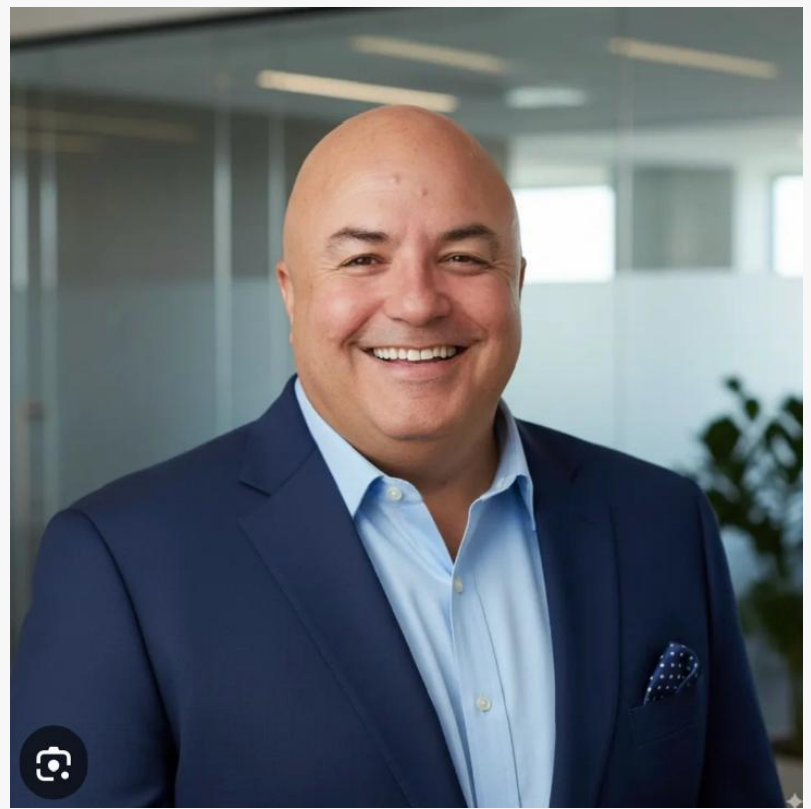

Rather than purchasing through multiple distributors and retail showrooms, One Direct Mill works directly with leading manufacturers to supply luxury products at factory-direct pricing. By eliminating unnecessary middlemen, homeowners, contractors, and developers gain access to premium products without paying excessive retail markups.

The company offers an extensive selection of high-end building products, including luxury European kitchens, custom cabinetry, designer bathroom vanities, premium flooring, impact-resistant windows and doors, architectural millwork, interior doors, closets, hardware, and custom interior finishes.

Every product is carefully selected for its craftsmanship, durability, functionality, and timeless design, ensuring each project meets the highest standards of luxury construction.

Together, Now Eco Home and One Direct Mill create a seamless experience for clients by combining world-class construction with premium factory-direct materials. Instead of coordinating multiple suppliers, contractors, and vendors, clients benefit from a unified approach that simplifies the building process while maintaining exceptional quality throughout every stage of the project.

Whether building a custom residence, renovating an existing property, or developing a luxury community, clients receive the advantage of working with a team backed by more than 40 years of construction expertise and a commitment to excellence.

As demand continues to grow for stronger, smarter, and more sustainable homes, Zaki Lev remains focused on innovation while maintaining the craftsmanship and integrity that have defined his career. His mission is simple: build homes that are beautiful, resilient, energy-efficient, and designed to stand the test of time.

By combining luxury construction with factory-direct access to premium finishes, Now Eco Home and One Direct Mill are helping redefine what homeowners can expect from the modern building experience.
