

Global Citizen Solutions ranks all active residency programmes worldwide: Where to secure a second residency in 2026

2026 Global Residency Programs Index names Switzerland, the UAE, Portugal, Italy and Greece the world's top five residency programmes.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, August 10, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Global Citizen Solutions ("GCS"), a leading global residency and citizenship planning advisory firm, today released its 2026 Global Residency Programs Index, an independent evaluation scoring 48 leading residency programs across 46 jurisdictions on five weighted pillars: quality of life, procedure, mobility, investment, and compliance and credibility.

a residency abroad isn't merely a financial instrument, it's a life decision. Cost and compliance matter, as does everyday life in a new country: schools, healthcare, and community."

The findings offer a practical shortlist of where the strongest options remain.

The top five

Switzerland, Lump-Sum Taxation (91.9, No. 1 overall) Switzerland's edge comes from a perfect Compliance & Credibility score, the decisive factor, paired with near-elite quality of life, top-tier mobility and a strong fiscal profile. It ranks among the safest, most politically stable countries in the world; the trade-off is one of the highest costs of living anywhere, offset by exceptional healthcare, world-class schools and a family-friendly outdoor culture across four distinct Alpine seasons. It sits outside the European Union.

UAE, Golden Visa (91.5, No. 2)

The UAE is the fiscal standout of the Index, with zero personal income tax and a comparatively low entry threshold, available through routes including property investment. It pairs that with strong mobility and one of the lowest-crime environments anywhere, plus a large, international expat community and family-friendly infrastructure. Its GV is a renewable residency status only, with UAE nationality reserved for exceptional, government-nominated cases rather than something an investor can work toward.

Portugal, Golden Visa / ARI (91.3, No. 3)

Portugal's Golden Visa provides a strong quality of life, near-ceiling mobility via a full EU/Schengen passport, and a citizenship pathway of seven to ten years depending on nationality. Portugal's Golden Visa can be secured through a qualifying investment fund (minimum €500,000 in a private equity or venture capital fund investing in Portuguese companies), a cultural donation (from around €200,000), a research-funding contribution, or an investment tied to job creation. It remains Europe's value leader, a moderate cost of living, a mild Atlantic climate, and a welcoming culture for families relocating from abroad, and is the highest-ranked EU route.

Italy, Investor Visa (90.3, No. 4)

Italy earns its ranking on process and passport strength rather than price. Its Investor Visa offers a fast, flexible menu of qualifying investments, government bonds, company shares, start-ups or a philanthropic donation, paired with strong EU mobility. That combination offsets a costlier, less tax-efficient entry. Family life is notoriously rich in food, culture and history. As a non-EU national, an Investor Visa holder can pursue Italian citizenship after ten years of legal residence under standard naturalization rules.

Greece, Golden Visa (89.5, No. 5)

Greece is the Index's fastest-processing programme by a wide margin, paired with strong mobility. Its Mediterranean climate, welcoming culture and relaxed, community-centred lifestyle make it a strong pick for families prioritising sun and hospitality. Of the top five, it is the only one where real estate remains the primary route, with the qualifying property threshold raised to €800,000 in prime areas in September 2024, though a startup-investment alternative is now also available.

"What's changed over the past decade is as much about demand as it is about due diligence. The programmes that scored best in 2026 are the ones that can demonstrate strong governance and withstand scrutiny, not just the ones with the lowest ticket price. That is exactly the standard Switzerland's programme and the UAE's Golden Visa have been built around, which is why they have become two of the most credible programmes in the world.

For a growing number of our clients, a residency abroad isn't merely a financial instrument, it's a life decision. Cost and compliance matter, but so does the everyday texture of life in a new country: schools, healthcare, and community. That's exactly what this year's Index was built to capture: destinations like Italy, Portugal and Greece score well on combined strengths, and on how good daily life actually feels."

— Patricia Casaburi, CEO, Global Citizen Solutions

"We built this year's Index around five weighted pillars: quality of life, procedure, mobility, investment, and compliance and credibility, because no single number tells the whole story of a residency program. That's also why quality of life carries the largest weighting of any pillar in our model, along with procedure."

— Dr. Laura Madrid, Lead Researcher, Global Intelligence Unit, Global Citizen Solutions

Methodology

The 2026 Global Residency Programs Index scores programs on a 0–100 scale across five weighted pillars: quality of life (30%), procedure (30%), mobility (20%), investment (10%), and compliance and credibility (10%). Program details were current at the time of writing; terms change frequently and applicants should confirm current requirements with official sources before making any decision or contacting a trusted advisor.
