Columbus Demand

COLUMBUS, OH - Aug 2026 - A-Team Transmissions has added three new technicians to its staff, strengthening its repair capacity across both of its Columbus-area locations as customer demand continues to climb. The new hires expand the shop's ability to take on more diagnostics and repairs. This comes as more Central Ohio drivers turn to a dedicated specialist for transmission work. By bringing on additional skilled technicians, the company aims to keep scheduling manageable and turnaround steady for both its north-side and east-side customers. This helps drivers spend less time waiting and more time back on the road.

Growing our team lets us keep giving Central Ohio drivers the honest answers and clear diagnostics they count on, without the wait getting in the way.”

Sean Avner, Owner, A-Team Transmissions

The growth reflects the shop's relationship-first approach. Rather than expanding into unrelated work, A-Team Transmissions is investing in the specialty it is known for. This includes transmission repair and service, clutch repair, differential repair, engine diagnostics and repair, and software and module programming. Every job still begins with a free diagnostic and a plain-language explanation of the problem. This practice has earned the shop its local reputation for honesty and clear communication.

For drivers searching for transmission services near Columbus, the added capacity is meant to make that first step easier. The company continues to serve customers from two locations, giving both north-side and east-side drivers a nearby option without a trip across the metro.

A Message From the Owner

"Adding three technicians is about protecting what our customers value most, which is straight answers and reliable work they can trust," said Sean Avner, Owner of A-Team Transmissions. "As demand grows, we want to keep that same personal, relationship-driven service that people expect from us, at both of our locations."
