

Tellurian Research Launches Weekly Strategic Intelligence Report for the Democratic Republic of Congo

New AI-powered, expert-reviewed report analyses the political, economic, security and business developments shaping the DRC.

KINSASHA, CONGO-KINSHASA, August 11, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Tellurian Research has launched the DRC Weekly Monitoring Report, a new premium publication providing decision-makers with in-depth analysis of the political, economic, security and business developments shaping the Democratic Republic of Congo.

The inaugural edition will be available in full and free of charge on the Tellurian Research website, allowing readers to experience the report's analysis, assessments and forward-looking insights.

Published every Monday, the report examines the week's most significant developments, identifies emerging trends and assesses the risks and opportunities affecting the country's operating environment. It covers key sectors including mining, energy, infrastructure, politics, security, public health and geopolitics.

The publication combines AI-powered research and monitoring with expert human analysis to deliver concise, contextualized and actionable intelligence. It is designed to move beyond daily news coverage and help businesses, investors and international organizations understand what developments mean, why they matter and what may happen next.

"The DRC is a complex and rapidly evolving market. Decision-makers need more than a summary of the news. They need reliable analysis that connects developments, identifies emerging risks and helps them anticipate what comes next," said Arnon Epstein, Managing Director of Tellurian Research. "Our Weekly Monitoring Report was created to provide that broader strategic perspective.”

Future editions will be presented on the Tellurian Research website through a public preview, with full access available to subscribers. Subscribers will receive comprehensive analysis, strategic assessments, key indicators, maps, a curated watchlist and forward-looking insights supporting informed business and investment decisions.

The new publication complements Tellurian Research’s DRC Daily Monitoring Report. Together, the two services provide both real-time situational awareness and deeper weekly analysis of the forces shaping the country.
