

AI in Finance Summit London Returns to Help Financial Institutions Scale AI from Pilot to Production

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, August 11, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As financial institutions accelerate enterprise AI adoption, the AI in Finance Summit London returns for its 11th edition, bringing together senior AI, data, technology, and innovation leaders to explore how organisations are moving beyond experimentation and delivering AI at scale.

Taking place on 15 September 2026 at the America Square Conference

Centre, London, the one-day summit will unite practitioners from leading banks, insurers, asset managers, fintechs, and regulatory bodies to share practical strategies for deploying AI safely, securely, and with measurable business impact.

While many organisations have successfully launched AI pilots, the next challenge is operationalising AI across complex, highly regulated environments. This year's programme focuses on the technical, operational, and governance challenges that determine whether AI initiatives successfully transition into production-ready systems.

The agenda features expert-led keynotes, technical workshops, interactive roundtables, and real-world case studies designed to provide attendees with practical frameworks they can immediately apply within their organisations.

Key discussion topics include:

- Scaling AI from proof of concept to enterprise-wide deployment
- Building resilient AI architectures for regulated financial institutions
- Agentic AI and autonomous workflows with appropriate governance
- AI testing, evaluation, and observability
- Model risk management and responsible AI governance
- AI cybersecurity, fraud prevention, and operational resilience
- Cloud concentration, third-party risk, and DORA compliance

- AI innovation across banking, capital markets, and investment management

The summit features speakers from some of the world's leading financial institutions, including J.P. Morgan Chase, HSBC, BlackRock, Lloyds Banking Group, NatWest Group, Goldman Sachs, Virgin Money, British Business Bank, and many more, creating a unique environment for peer learning and strategic discussion.

Unlike many AI conferences that focus on future possibilities, AI in Finance Summit London is designed specifically for practitioners responsible for building, deploying, governing, and scaling AI systems within financial services. Through candid deployment stories, technical deep-dives, and collaborative discussions, attendees will gain practical insight into what it takes to successfully operationalise AI while meeting evolving regulatory expectations.

The event also offers extensive networking opportunities, connecting senior executives responsible for AI strategy, data, engineering, cybersecurity, compliance, and digital transformation with technology providers helping shape the next generation of financial services.

Registration is now open.
