

RealCar Expands Door-to-Door Luxury Car Rental Across New York City and Miami, Eliminating the Rental Counter Entirely

Range Rover, Porsche, Cadillac and Cybertruck rentals now offer delivery and one-way options between both cities.

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, August 13, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- RealCar, the luxury rental car service operating in New York City and Miami, today highlighted the growth of its door-to-door delivery model, which removes shuttle buses, counter lines and remote lots from the rental experience in two of America's most-visited destinations.

Rather than directing travelers to a rental facility, RealCar delivers the vehicle to the customer — at the terminal curb, hotel entrance, private residence or rented villa — cleaned, fueled and ready, with documentation completed digitally in advance. At the end of the rental, the vehicle is collected from wherever the customer leaves it.

The service now supports one-way rentals between New York City and Miami across its entire fleet, allowing travelers to drive the Atlantic corridor in one direction and fly the other.

Two Cities, One Requirement: A Car

New York and Miami are among the highest-volume leisure and business travel markets on the East Coast, and in both, the most sought-after experiences sit outside the urban core.

From Manhattan, the destinations that define a New York weekend — Montauk, Sag Harbor and Bridgehampton to the east; Beacon, Cold Spring and Hudson to the north — are not served by subway or practical by rideshare. For travelers heading out of the city, a car rental nyc booking delivered to the door replaces a morning spent reaching a garage in Midtown.

In South Florida, the calculus is similar. The Overseas Highway runs 113 miles from the mainland to Key West, crossing the Seven Mile Bridge with open water on both sides. Northward, the corridor from the Design District through Wynwood to Coconut Grove and on to Palm Beach rewards travelers with their own vehicle and their own schedule — which is why a car rental miami reservation is less a convenience than a prerequisite for seeing the region properly.

"In both of these cities, the car is not a detail of the trip — it's what makes the trip possible," said a RealCar spokesperson. "Our customers are protecting limited days. Losing an hour to a shuttle and a queue at the start of a trip is the single most avoidable failure in this industry, and we designed the company to remove it."

A Curated Fleet, Not a Lot

RealCar's inventory is selected rather than stocked, spanning:

Luxury SUVs: Range Rover and Cadillac Escalade models suited to family travel, luggage capacity and long highway legs

Sports cars and convertibles: Porsche and comparable marques built for the Overseas Highway and the Hudson Valley alike

Electric and next-generation vehicles: including the Tesla Cybertruck, increasingly requested for the New York-to-Miami winter drive

Executive sedans: Mercedes-Benz, BMW and Jaguar models for business travel and client hosting

All vehicles are professionally maintained and detailed, with transparent pricing and no surprise surcharges.

Airport and FBO Delivery

RealCar serves the major commercial airports in both markets — JFK, LaGuardia and Newark in the New York area, and MIA, OPF and TMB in South Florida — and provides curbside delivery to FBO terminals for private and semi-private aviation customers, including JSX passengers. It is a segment where the mismatch between a fast, frictionless flight and a slow rental process has been most pronounced.
