One year after 33-year-old Martha Nolan-O'Slatarra's death, her estate's attorneys are asking anyone with information to come forward.

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, August 13, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- One year after 33-year-old fashion entrepreneur Martha Nolan-O'Slatarra was found unresponsive aboard a yacht in Montauk and later pronounced dead, her family and their attorneys are launching a public tipline seeking witnesses and new information about what happened that night.

“

Martha's family has waited more than a year for answers, and we are committed to finding out all the information and evidence about what happened to her that night”

Michael J. Bowe, Founding Partner, Brithem LLP

Martha's family and their attorneys at Brithem LLP have launched marthatipline.com, a public tipline seeking information that could help the legal team's continuing investigation into the events at the Star Island Yacht Club on August 4–5, 2025.

The launch follows a wrongful death lawsuit filed August 4, 2026 by Brithem attorneys Michael Bowe and Lauren Tabaksblat against Christopher Durnan on behalf of Martha's estate. The lawsuit, Nolan v. Durnan, was filed in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of New York, Case No. 159814/2026.

“Martha's family has waited more than a year for answers, and we are committed to finding out all the information and evidence about what happened to her that night,” said Michael J. Bowe, founding partner of Brithem LLP. “We believe there are people who have information that can help. If you saw something, heard something, or know something about Martha, Christopher Durnan or the events at the Star Island Yacht Club, please come forward.”

The tipline is part of Brithem's continuing investigation into the circumstances surrounding Martha's death and seeks information from anyone who may have witnessed relevant events or who has information about the participants in those events at the Star Island Yacht Club on August 4–5, 2025.

Information can be submitted directly to Brithem LLP at marthatipline.com.
