Registration closing soon: language educators urged to secure their spot before this pivotal half-day summit

elam.ca — With artificial intelligence reshaping how lessons are planned, delivered, and personalized, ELAM is bringing together the language education community for ELAM Connect 2026, a half-day summit taking place Monday, August 24, 2026, under the theme "The AI-Equipped Language Teacher: Rethinking Lesson Planning."

ELAM Returns with Its Annual AI Language Teaching Summit

Language teachers today face a fast-moving landscape: growing class sizes, more diverse learner needs, and rising expectations to integrate technology meaningfully into the classroom not just as a novelty, but as a genuine teaching advantage. ELAM Connect 2026 was designed to meet this moment head-on, giving educators practical, classroom-ready strategies for using AI to plan smarter lessons, save time, and better differentiate instruction for every learner in the room. With seats filling quickly and the summit just weeks away, ELAM is encouraging educators to register now to avoid missing out.

A Full Day of Learning, Built for Practicality

The summit features a dynamic blend of keynote presentations, interactive workshops, and hands-on demonstrations, ensuring a practical and engaging experience for every participant from teachers just beginning to explore AI tools to seasoned professionals looking to sharpen their practice.

Special Presenters

This year's summit welcomes two special presenters:

An ambassador from Genially will join the summit stage — and attendees are in for more than a presentation. Stay tuned for a special surprise awaiting event attendees.

Carla Wyburn, CEO and Founder of Language Coach AI, will also take the stage. Carla has spent her entire professional journey helping people learn languages more effectively. As CEO of Language Coach AI, she combines decades of experience in education, digital learning, and technology to create solutions that help learners develop one of the most important language skills: speaking with confidence.

Keynote Speakers

The summit also welcomes two distinguished guest speakers:

Nik Peachey is an accomplished educator, author, and learning technology consultant renowned for his expertise in integrating technology into education. With over 30 years of experience in the field, Nik has become a prominent figure in digital learning and teacher professional development, sharing his knowledge through numerous publications, workshops, and presentations worldwide.

Meet our 2026 guest speakers: the experts from Genially!

Jérémie Séror, Full Professor at the Official Languages and Bilingualism Institute at the University of Ottawa and Research Chair in Technology-Mediated Language Learning and Artificial Intelligence, will present "AI in Teams: Better Text Analysis for Better Language Teaching," exploring how to unlock the hidden teaching opportunities in a text using a team of AI agents.

Earn Your AI Certified Trainer (ELAM) Badge

Attendees who complete the full summit will earn or renew the AI Certified Trainer (ELAM) badge, a digital credential that can be displayed on an email signature, CV, LinkedIn profile, and ELAM trainer card. The badge signals to colleagues, employers, and learners that a teacher has completed structured, hands-on training in AI for language teaching, including lesson planning, materials development, content generation, and multi-level differentiation. It is proof that a teacher doesn't just talk about AI in the classroom; they teach with it.

The workshop is free for active ELAM trainers and available to other participants for a fee of $150 CDN. Whether attending live or viewing the session recordings, participants will receive the official badge of participation, usable in professional records or as a training credential.

Why Attend Now

AI is no longer a distant trend in education; it is already changing how lessons are planned and delivered. Teachers who build AI fluency now will be better equipped to save preparation time, personalize instruction, and stay ahead in a rapidly evolving field. ELAM Connect 2026 offers a rare opportunity to learn directly from leading voices in AI and language education, gain a recognized professional credential, and connect with a community of forward-thinking educators all in a half day.

Seats are limited, and the summit is just around the corner. Educators are encouraged to register today.
