

JODIE KING TEACHES ARTISTS HOW TO GET PAID FOR THEIR ART IN A NEW LIVE WORKSHOP SERIES

For the first time, King is bringing her private Rebel Trifecta framework to the public in a four-part series to help artists build a sustainable art career.

AUSTIN, TX, UNITED STATES, August 14, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Jodie King Media, the artist education company behind the Rebel Trifecta framework and trademarked Honest Art® methodology, today announced "The Artist Who Gets Paid," a four-session live workshop series taking place August 19, 20, 25 and 27, 2026, at 12 p.m. CT.

The series marks the first time founder and CEO Jodie King will teach the Rebel Trifecta publicly as a standalone live experience. Until now, the framework has been taught inside King's private coaching work.

Artist and educator Jodie King announces "The Artist Who Gets Paid," a four-part live series for creatives, taking place August 19, 20, 25, and 27 at 12 p.m.

The Rebel Trifecta brings together three areas King believes artists need to develop together to build a sustainable career: art, business and mindset. The new workshop series is built around a question King has spent more than two decades helping artists answer: What actually stands between an artist who is technically skilled and an artist who gets paid for their work?

"It took me two decades to fine-tune this framework into something that actually works, not once but time and time again," said Jodie King, founder and CEO of Jodie King Media. "Over the years, I've taught more than a thousand students, and I've watched this same approach transform their art businesses too. Now, for the first time, I get to teach it live."

King has been a professional, actively selling artist since 2002. Through her courses, coaching programs and workshops, she has taught more than 1,000 artists in the U.S. and internationally.

Four live sessions focused on building an art career.

“The Artist Who Gets Paid” will take place live on August 19, 20, 25 and 27 at 12 p.m. CT.

The first three sessions will focus on the three pillars of the Rebel Trifecta: art, business and mindset. The final session will bring the framework together and help attendees determine practical next steps for applying it to their own art careers.

Registration is \$27 for all four sessions and includes recordings of every session, so artists who cannot attend all four live sessions can watch the sessions on their own time. Artists who attend live will also have the opportunity to participate in hot-seat coaching with King.

Jodie King has taught over 1,000 artists in her 24-year-long career as a professional artist.

The workshop is designed for artists at different stages of their careers, including those who are already selling their work but want to build a more sustainable business around it.
