immigration law firm serving clients throughout all 50 states and abroad, has been named No. 1,393 on the 2026 Inc. 5000, the annual ranking of America's fastest-growing private companies.

The firm is one of 147 New Jersey businesses recognized on this year's list, according to NJBIZ.

Odunlami Law is also announcing the expansion of its legal services to include select family law matters throughout New Jersey. The firm now assists New Jersey clients with divorce, adoption, annulment, child welfare matters, and cases in which family law and immigration law intersect.

“Odunlami Law Firm was founded by an immigrant to help other immigrants build secure lives and keep their families together,” said Ifeoma Odunlami, founder and principal attorney of Odunlami Law Firm. “We understand these challenges because we have lived them. Our growth allows us to help more families not only with immigration matters, but also with the New Jersey family law issues that can affect their children, relationships, legal status, and future. This Inc. 5000 recognition belongs to our entire team and to the clients who have trusted us during some of the most important moments of their lives.”

Meeting Families at the Intersection of Immigration and Family Law

Family law and immigration law are governed by different legal systems, but the two can be closely connected. A divorce, adoption, custody dispute, annulment, or other family court matter may have significant consequences for an immigrant and their family.

By adding select New Jersey family law services, Odunlami Law Firm can provide informed guidance to clients whose legal concerns do not fit neatly into one practice area.

The firm's New Jersey family law services include:

- Divorce
- Annulment
- Child welfare matters
- Cases involving both immigration and family law concerns

"Families should not have to explain their immigration journey to one lawyer and their family circumstances to another without anyone seeing the complete picture," Odunlami said. "Our goal is to help clients understand how one legal decision may affect another so they can make informed choices for themselves and their families."
