

Beyond Ride Announces McKinney-Vento Transportation Support for Homeless Students in Washington

Beyond Ride expands student transportation services to help Washington schools support McKinney-Vento, special education, and high-need students.

BREMERTON, WA, UNITED STATES, August 15, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- BREMERTON, WA. – Every day a student loses stable housing, a new transportation challenge begins. For many school districts, getting that student safely to school can quickly become one of the most difficult operational problems to solve. Beyond Ride believes that challenge deserves more than temporary solutions.

Beyond Ride today announced the expansion of its student transportation services designed to support Washington school districts with McKinney-Vento transportation, Special Education transportation, wheelchair-accessible transportation, one-on-one student transportation, foster care transportation, emergency transportation, and other specialized student mobility needs.

Federal law protects a student's right to remain connected to their education even when housing changes unexpectedly. Transportation is often the critical link that determines whether that right becomes reality. When traditional routes cannot accommodate a student living outside district boundaries, in temporary housing, or with unique transportation needs, districts frequently need qualified private transportation partners.

"Transportation should never become the reason a child falls behind in school," said Navdeep Maju, Medical Transportation Specialist at Beyond Ride. "School districts already carry enormous responsibility. Our goal is to become a trusted transportation partner that helps remove one of the biggest barriers students and families face."

Beyond Ride is positioning itself as a specialized transportation provider built to complement district transportation operations rather than replace them. The company plans to work directly with school districts throughout Washington by becoming an approved transportation vendor for student transportation services where private providers are appropriate.

The company's transportation capabilities include:

- McKinney-Vento student transportation
- Special Education and IEP transportation
- Wheelchair-accessible transportation
- Individual student transportation
- Foster care transportation
- Out-of-district transportation
- Overflow transportation
- Emergency transportation support
- Extended School Year (ESY) transportation
- Summer school transportation

Beyond Ride says its approach is centered on safety, accountability, communication, and operational reliability. Drivers receive professional training, vehicles are maintained to high safety standards, and transportation operations are supported by technology designed to improve visibility and coordination. As school districts continue to face driver shortages, changing student housing situations, and increasingly complex transportation logistics, the demand for dependable transportation partners continues to grow.

"Our objective is simple," added Maju. "When a transportation challenge seems impossible, we want school districts to know they have someone they can call."
