

NAVEX One Whistleblowing & Incident Management Offers Improved Multilingual Investigation Efficiency and User Experience

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, August 17, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- NAVEX, the global leader in integrated risk and compliance management solutions, today announced a new user interface refresh and localisation of NAVEX One Whistleblowing & Incident Management.

Customers will benefit from improved usability while maintaining the cohesive workflows and functionality they already rely on. The cleaner, more intuitive interface delivers a unified visual and user experience. The enhancements will also help international users manage ethics and compliance cases more confidently across languages (English, German, French, Portuguese, Japanese, Spanish), regions, character sets, and administrative workflows; improving productivity.

By moving beyond translated screens to a more language-aware case management experience, NAVEX helps customers reduce English-first friction, support global administrators, strengthen reporting usability, and improve screening accuracy in international markets.

The following capabilities will therefore empower global teams to work more confidently, access insights faster, and maintain more consistent oversight of ethics and compliance programs across regions.

Localised user and admin experiences

Support global teams with a more localised experience, including translated administration, default language settings, and configuration options for global program management. In addition to refreshed user interface components.

Machine translation enhancements

Help investigators and support teams understand case content faster with machine translation for report details and expanded translation support for additional case content over time.

Tailored analytics and reporting

Enable teams to build, filter, and analyse reports in ways that better align with user language preferences and customer default language settings.

Configurable localisation settings

Improve flexibility for multinational programs with support for fallback language logic, language tagging, translatable sub-categories, preferred currency settings, and localised custom fields or dropdown values.

“NAVEX One Whistleblowing & Incident Management is becoming more globally adaptable to support non-English-speaking users. These features will allow organisations to investigate cases faster, generate more usable reporting, and screen implicated parties more accurately. These benefits are critical in markets where language and naming conventions create operational and compliance risk,” shared Raj Sethuraman, President and Chief Product and Technology Officer at NAVEX.

NAVEX announced these new product enhancements after the launch of Nira, its new agentic AI experience, as the business continues its mission to transform the way compliance professionals manage risk and compliance.
