Sibylline Press*

Zara, lawyerly and just a little cynical, teams up with her older sister, Lilly, when a Caravaggio sketch and its curator both go missing from a San Francisco museum. Lilly's never met a man—or a scam—she didn't at least wink at. Meticulous Zara discovers that a major museum donor who was dating the missing curator turns out to be a handsome, wealthy criminal. That's all Lilly needs to hear before she's all in to join the chase. Threaded through this modern-day mystery are flashbacks to a journal kept during World War II by the father of one of Lilly's many boyfriends. The search moves from San Francisco to New York City to an old barn in Alsace, France, where the curator and the Caravaggio may, or may not, be hiding.

"Sisters at an Exhibition delivers an intriguing art theft with international intrigue and unexpected twists along with plenty of humor and heart," said Vicki DeArmon, Publisher of Sibylline Press. "Claudia Hagadus Long has created two unforgettable sister sleuths of a certain age and we're thrilled to bring Zara and Lilly to Sibylline readers."

Praise for Sisters at an Exhibition:

"Sisters at an Exhibition, a keenly observed historical tale within a mystery, pairs two sisters investigating the trail of a Caravaggio sketch and their family past. I loved the pace and art world details. Love art? This is for you!"

—Cara Black, bestselling author of the Aimée Leduc mystery series

"For anyone who loves art history and a mystery that masterfully balances drama with comedy, and fear with hope, Claudia Hagadus Long's Sisters at an Exhibition is essential reading."

—John Guzlowski, author of the Hank and Marvin Mysteries

"[The novel] sweeps the reader into an international adventure that starts with a 'routine' HR complaint, leads to a missing masterpiece, and lands on a dangerous family secret."

—Frankie Bow, author of the Mary-Alice Files and the Professor Molly Mysteries
