

INFINITI Fleet Safety Training Launches New Pricing Tiers to Put Better Safety Training Within Reach of Every Fleet

New Silver, Gold, and Platinum options give fleets more control over how they invest in safety while maintaining access to proven training content.

TEXARKANA, AR, UNITED STATES, August 18, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- INFINITI Fleet Safety Training has launched a new three-tier pricing structure designed to make effective online safety training accessible to more fleets, regardless of their size or budget.

The new Silver, Gold, and Platinum levels allow fleets to choose the technology and support that make sense for their operation while maintaining access to INFINITI's full training course catalog.

“Effective safety training shouldn't be out of reach because of fleet size or budget,” said Jay Wommack, CEO of INFINITI Fleet Safety Training. “These new options give fleets a place to start and room to grow.”

Silver provides an affordable entry point for companies seeking effective safety training for small fleets. Starting at $85 per user annually with a 15-user minimum, fleets receive the full training course catalog along with essential tools for assigning training and maintaining accountability.

Gold delivers the complete INFINITI training platform for fleets that need greater automation and operational control. It includes advanced reporting and Business Intelligence Dashboards. Fleets also gain access to Learning Paths, assignment templates, API connections, and other tools designed to simplify training management across larger operations.

Platinum takes the system further by combining INFINITI's full platform with consultation and customized training development. INFINITI works directly with fleets to evaluate their existing safety practices and business goals. From there, the team develops custom training designed to improve efficiency and profitability. The Platinum program begins at $50,000 and is customized to each organization.

The result is a pricing model built around what fleets actually need instead of forcing every operation into the same package.

Whether a fleet needs the essentials to get training online or a complete system built around its operation, INFINITI now provides a clear path forward.

Every fleet deserves access to safety training that works. Now, more of them can afford to have it.
