opened its relocated Raleigh family law office at 305 Church at North Hills Street, Suite 1250, Raleigh, NC 27609, on August 1, 2026, and now handles consultations, scheduling, and active client matters for the surrounding region from that address.

The opening completes the relocation the firm announced in July. Marshall & Taylor PLLC closed its office at 221 Glenwood Avenue on July 31, 2026, and resumed operations at the North Hills address the following business day. Client matters already underway moved with the firm and continued without interruption. The firm's phone number did not change, and clients reached staff at the same line before, during, and after the move.

The Suite 1250 office houses the firm's Raleigh operations, including client meetings, case management, and confidential consultations by appointment. The firm has updated the address on its website and is updating its directory listings so clients and referral sources locate the current office. Wilmington operations were not affected by the Raleigh move and continue as before.

The firm selected the North Hills address for its position inside the city, which gives clients traveling from Wake County and surrounding counties a central point for in-person meetings. Marshall & Taylor PLLC handles family law matters that include custody disputes, asset division, and appeals.

As part of the move, the firm updated its signage, mailing address, and listings with the North Carolina State Bar and other referral directories to reflect the North Hills location. Staff also updated pending case filings and client correspondence to list the new address, and the firm is forwarding mail addressed to the former Glenwood Avenue office during the transition period.

Court dates, deadlines, and case assignments already on file were not affected by the change in address.

"Opening at North Hills gives clients a single Raleigh address for consultations, meetings, and case work, and it supports how our attorneys represent families across North Carolina," said Jeffrey Marshall, Attorney at Marshall & Taylor PLLC.

The North Hills office operates during regular business hours and takes consultations by appointment. Prospective clients can call the firm to schedule a meeting or request directions, and current clients can reach their attorney at the same number they used before the move.

With the relocation complete, Marshall & Taylor PLLC represents clients in family law matters from the North Hills Street office, and its Wilmington presence remains part of the firm's operations in the state.

About Marshall & Taylor PLLC

Marshall & Taylor PLLC is North Carolina's elite force in family law—trusted by executives, public figures, and everyday families alike when the stakes couldn't be higher. Based in Raleigh with a growing presence in Wilmington, the firm is led by Jeffrey Marshall, who is one of the state's few Board-Certified Family Law Specialists and Family Financial Mediators and a consistent fixture on Super Lawyers, Legal Elite, Best Lawyers, and Power List. He focuses on complex custody battles and high-net-worth asset division. Partner Travis Taylor adds another dimension in appeals, giving clients a decisive edge when the outcome will define their future. Known for winning high-conflict divorces, securing favorable custody arrangements against the odds, and protecting multimillion-dollar assets, Marshall & Taylor combines courtroom dominance with strategic foresight. Offering confidential consultations and a bespoke, battle-ready approach, they are the firm people turn to when there is no room for compromise.
