This availability can help distributors respond to time-sensitive requirements without waiting through factory replenishment or custom-order lead times, which are currently estimated at approximately 16 weeks.

“Supply-chain uncertainty and fluctuations in the copper market continue to affect availability and lead times, so having more than 250,000 feet of medium-voltage cable on the ground gives our distribution partners a strong advantage,” said Craig Williams, General Manager of Commodity Cables LLC. “We encourage distributors to begin sharing this offering with their customers immediately. Whether the need involves an urgent replacement, an upcoming project, or additional stocking inventory, our team is ready to provide straightforward pricing and help move the order forward.”

Commodity Cables LLC makes the purchasing process easier by providing specification sheets for every product, allowing buyers to quickly review technical information and confirm whether a cable meets their project requirements. Customers also benefit from no waiting on quotes, helping distributors receive pricing and availability information promptly and proceed with greater confidence.

The available cable can support a range of medium-voltage electrical distribution applications where 15kV or 35kV cable is specified. Commodity Cables LLC can also assist with special pricing, project support and larger-volume commitments.

“Having the product available is only part of the solution,” Williams added. “Distributors also need quick answers, accessible specifications and reliable support. Our goal is to eliminate unnecessary delays and make it easier for our partners to secure the cable they need.”
