My Vibration is about realizing that even when there's drama around you, you can choose how you respond and stay true to yourself. I wanted it to feel like something other kids my age could relate to.”

songwriter Audrey Meigel releases “My Vibration,” her candid new single about navigating drama, recognizing your own role in it and trying to rise above the noise. The single is available now on all major streaming platforms, with the official music video out now on YouTube.

“My Vibration is a song about trying to rise above the drama, but then actually noticing that you might accidentally play a part in it,” says Audrey Meigel.

The release follows a packed Los Angeles run for Audrey Meigel that blended performance, media, fashion and music-video production. During her Hollywood visit, she performed original music for the Composers Breakfast Club, held at Aviator Nation Dreamland in Malibu, joining a long-running creative community whose stage has welcomed some of music and entertainment’s most influential artists, songwriters, producers and industry leaders. The trip also included a behind-the-scenes experience at the Warner Bros. Studios lot and the red-carpet premiere celebration for Disney’s Descendants: Wicked Wonderland. She also completed a professional photo shoot, filmed the official “My Vibration” music video and sat down for a Buzz/Teen Access interview.

The new visual brings the song’s theme directly into Audrey’s world, using a school-age setting to reflect the social pressures, friendships and everyday drama that inspired the track. Meigel is building her music around experiences that feel immediate and recognizable to young listeners while continuing to develop her own voice as a songwriter and performer.

“My Vibration” marks another step forward in Audrey’s growing catalog and follows a summer filled with live appearances, media moments and creative development with NI Music Group.
