

TRT Becomes an Authorised XCMG Crane Dealer in Australia

Backed by decades of parts and service experience, the move gives Australian operators another trusted name in heavy lifting equipment.

AUSTRALIA, August 26, 2026

/EINPresswire.com/ -- TRT (Tidd Ross Todd) is pleased to announce their recent partnership with XCMG, one of the world's largest construction and lifting equipment manufacturers. As part of the agreement, TRT has been appointed an authorised dealer for the XCMG crane range, providing comprehensive product support across Queensland and down Australia's East Coast, giving customers in the region access to the equipment, parts, and support TRT is known for.

At TRT, we're committed to supplying equipment that delivers real value over its entire working life.”

Bruce Carden

As with every crane brand TRT supplies, customers can also turn to TRT's crane servicing, maintenance and repair team to keep their XCMG machines running at their best.

"At TRT, we're committed to supplying equipment that delivers real value over its entire working life," said Bruce Carden, Managing Director of TRT.

"Choosing the right OEM partner is about more than the product itself. It's about confidence in the engineering, a shared commitment to innovation, supplying value to the customer and the ability to support those customers for years to come. We believe XCMG is a strong fit for TRT because both companies are focused on developing better solutions for the industries we serve."

One Team for All Your Crane Servicing Needs

Regardless of brand, TRT services cranes across the board, not just the equipment it sells. Alongside its new XCMG dealership, TRT's technicians are equipped to service and maintain cranes from other leading manufacturers, such as Manitowoc and Grove, so fleet owners running mixed equipment can rely on one team for all their crane support needs.

Whatever brand is on site, TRT's parts and service teams are set up to help operators minimise downtime and keep their machines working hard for longer.

Decades of Experience Behind the Support

TRT has spent almost 60 years supplying heavy lifting and transport equipment built for tough conditions, and that track record is backed by a parts, service and technical team customers have come to depend on. Becoming an XCMG dealer adds to that history without changing what has always set the company apart.

"Our customers don't just buy equipment, they invest in uptime, reliability and the people standing behind it," Bruce said.

"That's where TRT has always differentiated itself. We'll be supporting the XCMG range with the same commitment to sales, parts and service that has defined TRT for almost 60 years. Customers can expect responsive technical support, genuine parts availability and experienced people who understand the equipment."

About TRT

Founded in 1967, TRT is a leading designer, manufacturer and supplier of heavy transport and lifting solutions across Australia and New Zealand. Alongside manufacturing TRT trailers and TIDD Pick & Carry Cranes, the company represents a range of globally recognised equipment brands supported by dedicated parts, service and technical teams.
