

Elite Property Innovations Offers One Contractor for Kitchen, Bath, Decks, and Roofing

Full-service remodeler consolidates work that typically requires four separate specialists, as Colorado storm season drives demand for combined projects

WESTMINSTER, CO, UNITED STATES, August 23, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Elite Property

When a project needs a roofer, a drywall guy, a painter, and a carpenter, somebody has to be the general contractor. If we're not doing that job, the homeowner is.”

Jacob Long, Owner, Elite Property Innovations

Innovations LLC, a licensed Colorado remodeling contractor serving Westminster, Arvada, Broomfield, and the broader Denver suburbs, is expanding awareness of its full-service model as homeowners increasingly find themselves managing multiple contractors for projects that overlap. The company handles kitchen remodeling, bathroom renovations, deck construction, roofing, and insurance restoration under a single contract, offering full-service home remodeling in Westminster without the coordination burden that typically falls on the homeowner.

The problem the model addresses is a familiar one across Jefferson and Boulder counties. A hailstorm damages a roof, which reveals gutter and siding issues, which turns up water damage on an interior ceiling. Under the conventional approach, that homeowner is now sourcing, vetting, scheduling, and sequencing three or four separate trades, each with its own timeline, its own contract, and its own explanation for why the delay is somebody else's fault.

"The homeowners we work with are usually two working parents with kids and not a lot of spare time," said Jacob Long, owner of Elite Property Innovations. "When a project needs a roofer, a drywall guy, a painter, and a carpenter, somebody has to be the general contractor. If we're not doing that job, the homeowner is, on top of everything else they've already got going."

Why Consolidation Matters More in Colorado

Colorado's climate makes overlapping scopes unusually common. Front Range hail seasons regularly produce claims that begin with a roof and end up involving siding, gutters, windows, and interior repairs. Freeze-thaw cycling along the Denver suburbs stresses decks and exterior structures in ways that surface as multiple problems at once rather than one.

Elite Property Innovations manages the full sequence in those situations, including direct coordination with insurance adjusters during the claims process. The company inspects the entire exterior rather than the damaged element alone, documenting collateral damage that is frequently missed when a claim is scoped narrowly, a gap that leaves homeowners covering the difference out of pocket after the settlement is finalized.

"A lot of people get their insurance check and assume that's the number," Long said. "It's the number for what the adjuster wrote down. If nobody was standing there making sure the gutters and the siding got included, they weren't included. That's not the insurance company being difficult, it's just what happens when nobody's advocating for the homeowner in that walkthrough."

Services Under One Contract

Elite Property Innovations provides kitchen remodeling, bathroom renovations and walk-in shower conversions, deck construction and repair, roofing services, insurance restoration, interior and exterior painting, drywall, carpentry, fence installation, window and door replacement, and general handyman work.

Founded by Long, who brings more than 25 years of hands-on Colorado residential construction experience, the company is licensed in Colorado under CO-GC-2024-08812 and maintains a 5.0 rating across 48 Google reviews. It also offers financing through Hearth Financial, allowing homeowners to move forward on planned projects without waiting to save the full cost.

The company's stated differentiator is process rather than price. Quotes are itemized so homeowners can see where allowances sit, changes discovered behind walls are documented and approved before work proceeds, and project communication is treated as a deliverable.
